TRADESMEN'S TOKENS,
CURRENT IN LONDON AND ITS VICINITY BETWEEN THE YEARS 1648 AND 1672.

DESCRIPTED FROM THE ORIGINALS IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM, AND IN SEVERAL PRIVATE COLLECTIONS.

BY

JOHN YONGE AKERMAN,
FELLOW AND SECRETARY OF THE SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES OF LONDON.

"The tokens which every tavern and tippling-house (in the days of late anarchy among us) presum'd to stamp and utter for immediate exchange, as they were passable through the neighbourhood, which, tho' seldom reaching further than the next street or two, may, happily, in after-times come to exercise and busie the learned critic what they should signify."—Evelyn's Numismata.

NOTWITHSTANDING the dictum of Pinkerton, many persons are yet found who collect Tradesmen's Tokens; and even in Germany, where not a tittle of Numismatic evidence is slighted or despised, these media of "charitie and change" are not considered unworthy the attention of those who can appreciate a better and a more legitimate coinage.

When we committed to the hands of our printer, some time since, a list of Tokens issued by Wiltshire Tradesmen in the 17th century,¹ we had some misgivings as to its reception by our French friends. Our uneasiness on this head has however diminished; and a paper in the *Revue Numismatique*² on the Brummagem satirical medalets, struck in this country, in ridicule of Tom Paine and the Jacobins of his day, assures us that even such trifles as these are occasionally not unworthy the notice of the learned and practised numismatist.³

It must be confessed that, as mere works of art, they have nothing to interest us; but it is submitted that, as containing a list of names only, they may not be without their use, and may comprise information of some value to the antiquary and the genealogist. Whether they are now "collected by some antiquaries with an avidity truly puerile," as the aforesaid authority assures us they were in his days, it is not our business to inquire; but we protest against his sweeping assertion, that "not one purpose of taste, information or curiosity can be drawn from them." "It need hardly be added," he continues, "that they are recommended to the supreme scorn of the reader, who may justly regard the studying or collecting of them, along with the admiration of Counters, as beneath any man of taste."

Now, although we yield to none in admiration of the classic beauty of the coins of Greece and Rome, we do not utterly reject the humble record of Tradesmen's Tokens. Though they bear not "copies of several statues that have had the politest nations of the world fall down before them;" 5 though they record no victories, bear no pompous and high sounding inscriptions, nor the effigies of dynasties which have gone down the stream of time, they yet cannot be without interest to many. Many of the tokens comprised in the following list were issued by the keepers of coffee-houses and taverns, 6

5 Addison's Dialogues upon the Usefulness of Ancient Medals, p. 15, ed. 1753.
6 Few persons will require to be reminded, that every tradesman once had his particular sign, and that, when the houses in streets were not numbered, such a practice was not without its use. A few shops and houses of business may yet be found in London, especially the old established ones, that have not entirely discarded their signs, and they may still be seen occupying the place of a pane in the win-and, on that account, are not altogether destitute of historical interest. Tavern signs change with the times: Henry the Eighth, Elizabeth, The Palgrave, Monk, and in more modern days,—

"Vernon, the butcher Cumberland, Wolfe, Hawke, Prince Ferdinand, Granby, Burgoyne, Keppel, Howe, Evil and good, have had their tithe of talk, And filled their sign-posts then, like Wellesley now."

A chapter of some length might be written on these changes, and the causes that led to them.

There are other mutations, not affected by political events, which alehouse and tavern signs, and their designations, have undergone. Every body knows that "The Satyr and Bacchanals" became in due time "The Satyr and Bag o'Nails," and that the puritan "God encompasseth us," was profaned to "The Goat and Compasses!" that the gallant Sir Cloudesley lives in the "Ship and Shovel;" and that the faithful Governor of Calais—"Caton fidèle"—is immortalised in the "Cat and Fiddle!" Nor is it necessary to remind the reader that it was proposed, with the addition of a few touches of the painter's brush, to convert the goodly effigies of Sir Roger de Coverley into a Saracen’s Head!

The constant occurrence of Blue Boars, Red dow. One or two bankers, too, do not disdain to exhibit their ancient cognizance over the door. Messrs. Hoare display the golden bottle over the entrance of their elegant new house of business. Childs, the bankers, bore the marigold, which may still be seen within their office. The "New View of London," 8vo. 1708, mentions, as a thing worthy of notice in Prescott-street, Goodman’s-fields, that, "instead of signs, the houses here are distinguished by numbers, as the staircases in the Inns of court and chancery."
Lions, Black Bulls, Golden Falcons, etc. are evidence of the heraldic origin of tavern signs; and the royal cognizances of course figure among them; we have thus the White Hart of the unfortunate Richard the Second, the White Swan of Henry the Fifth, the White Boar of Richard the Third, and the Red Dragon and the Greyhound of the Tudor family. The full-blown rose surmounted by an arched crown, and commonly designated "The Rose and Crown," probably had its origin in the reign of Henry the Eighth, it being the device on the reverse of the testoon or shilling of that king.

The number and variety of signs in use by tavern-keepers alone is well described in a song in Heywood's "Rape of Lucrece," 1st ed. 1608.

The gentry to the King's Head,
The nobles to the Crown,
The Knights unto the Golden Fleece,
And to the Plough the clown.
The churchman to the Mitre,
The shepherd to the Star,
The gardener hies him to the Rose,
To the Drum the man of War;
To the Feathers, ladies, you; the Globe
The seaman doth not scorn:
The usurer to the Devil, and
The townsman to the Horn.
The huntsman to the White Hart,
To the Ship the merchants go,
But you that do the Muses love,
The sign called River Po.
The banquerout to the World's End,
The fool to the Fortune hie,
Unto the Mouth the oyster-wife,
The fiddler to the Pie.
The punk unto the Cockatrice,
The drunkard to the Vine,
The beggar to the Bush, then meet,
And with Duke Humphry dine.
While, a century later, the British Apollo records them thus:—

I’m amused at the signs
As I pass through the town,
To see the odd mixture—
A Magpie and Crown;
The Whale and the Crow;
The Razor and Hen;
The Leg and Seven Stars;
The Axe and the Bottle;
The Tun and the Lute;
The Eagle and Child;
The Shovel and Boot.

Several of the tokens here described are of taverns in the vicinity of the Inns of Court and Temple Bar, the great thoroughfare from the city to the west end. This neighbourhood, though it has undergone many changes, still preserves some relics of its former state. Its taverns—snug enough when you reach them—at the ends of narrow courts; its quaint-looking houses; Bell-yard and Shire-lane, with their ancient tenements huddled together and cramped for room, all tend to convey an idea of what London was in old times.

The list which follows is a fair average sample of the quasi currency which provoked the scorn of Evelyn, and inundated the country in the middle of the 17th century, supplying “small change” to dealers and chapmen, until a legitimate coinage of farthings succeeded.

7 This for a long time was a horrible den. An attempt has been recently made, we believe, to purge it of its abominations. Shire-lane appears to have had an equivocal reputation in the 17th century. Here lodged that audacious villain, Titus Oates, while the town, and indeed all England, was ringing with accounts of pretended plots against the State.

8 Ruding, in his “Annals,” under the year 1665, seems to doubt, that the farthings with carolvs a carolo were ever in circulation; but There appears to have been some great general manufactory of these Tokens; for, with very few exceptions, the devices and legends are arranged in the same manner for the several trades, who frequently adopted the arms of the Company to which they belonged. Numerous examples exhibit an ad libitum mode of spelling which clearly indicates that the legends were often engraved from copies furnished by the illiterate utterers themselves: thus, we have "Gracious-street" for Gracechurch-street, "Pickled Hirne" for Pickled Herring, and other examples of vicious orthography very characteristic of the period. This, indeed, is sometimes so bad as absolutely to require the accompaniment of a device; for without a representation of the object chosen for a cognizance, some might doubt whether "The Hores Show" was in reality the Horse-shoe, or "The Grave Moryes," the sign of Maurice, Prince of Nassau.

It has been observed by a celebrated writer, that those events which excite the wonder and surprise of posterity, occasion but slight remark at the period of their occurrence; and we, who now marvel that such a coinage as that under notice could be tolerated by an English Government scarcely two centuries ago, almost forget the spurious issue of the Birmingham Mints in the reign of George the Third.

The tokens here described were not issued by the keepers of "taverns and tippling-houses" alone, as Evelyn would leave us to infer, but, as would appear, the fact that they are, at this time, very common, and that many are much worn, shews that they must have been current.

\(^9\) See Nos. 1134-5, p. 122.
by tradesmen generally, except booksellers, in every town in England. A specimen by a Chichester bookseller is remarkable:

Ob. ANNE MICHELL. IN 1669. A book with clasps.
Rev. bookseller, Chichester. In the field, her half peny.

It seems probable, however, that Mistress Michell joined some other trade to that of bookselling, like many dealers in country towns at the present day.

While the signs of London tradesmen are nearly obliterated and extinct, many old houses of entertainment defy both time and change, and still exhibit their ancient cognizance. Of those to be found in our list, the following yet remain:

The Salutation, Billingsgate.
The Bull, Bishopsgate-street.
The Bull and Mouth, Bloomsbury.
The Hole-in-the-Wall, Chancery-lane.
The Lion and Key, Thames-street.
The Old Swan, Thames-street.
The Castle, Wood-street.
The Feathers, Holborn.
The Bunch of Grapes, Hounds-ditch.
The Mitre, Fleet-street.

The Black Raven, Bishopsgate Without.
The King's Head, Holborn.
The Seven Stars, Rosemary-lane.
The Red Lion, Ratcliff.
The Cock, Bow-lane.
The White Bear, Bride-lane.
The Belle Sauvage, Ludgate-hill.
The Globe, Holborn.
The Black Boy and Camel, Leadenhall-street.
The Cock, Fleet-street.

If we were without other evidence, this pseudo moneta would give us a tolerably accurate idea of the length and breadth of plague-haunted London in the 17th century; but it does more: it shews us very clearly what neighbourhoods, before the great fire, abounded with shops kept by dealers in small wares, and the changes made in certain localities on the rebuilding of the city. In this way we learn how a tavern of some repute and also a coffee-house could have existed on Dowgate-hill, or small shops have been clustered about Puddle Dock.

It must be obvious to those who may look through these lists, that tavern and tradesmen's signs gave the name to numerous streets and thoroughfares; hence the Half-Moon-courts, Angel-alleys, Bell-yards, Star-courts and others still existing in London, as well as in country towns. In the same manner, no doubt, Giltspur-street received its designation from some well-known house displaying the sign of the Gilt Spur, and not, as the old chroniclers fancifully deduced it, from the procession of knights with their gilt spurs passing along this thoroughfare to the jousts in Smithfield.

In repeating our conviction that these Tokens may occasionally assist the genealogical inquirer, we would refer the reader to a very curious article in the Numismatic Journal, by Captain W. H. Smyth,\(^\text{10}\) who, by the production of a few pieces of this description once current in Bedford, astonished and confounded the magnates of that town, and silenced for ever their cry of "Bedford born."\(^\text{11}\)

INTRODUCTION.

The following remarks, though comprising little that is not known to those who are conversant with the history of our English coinage, are, nevertheless, a not inappropriate introduction to an account of the tokens or representatives of lawful money, current in London, and, indeed, throughout all England, from the year 1648, down to the year 1672.

In these days of civilisation and consequent luxury, it is difficult to conceive how trade and commerce were carried on in times when the penny was the chief coin, and when its half and quarter were the only divisions, if we except the stycas of the northern provinces, to which their circulation appears to have been exclusively confined. These last mentioned pieces were of copper (the penny, and its half and quarter, being of silver), and their current value was the eighth of a penny, as we learn from the gospels of Ulphilas, where the words "two mites," are rendered "two stycas."

The weight of the Saxon penny was originally twenty-four grains; but, like that of the Greek and Roman coins, this weight appears to have been quickly reduced, and the pennies of the last Saxon monarch weigh, on an average, but 22 grains. From the Norman Conquest to the reign of Henry VIII., the weight of the English penny or sterling gradually decreased, and at length dwindled in size to a mere spangle, so liable to be lost that, in the reign of Elizabeth, her advisers began to talk of a coinage of this piece in some baser metal; suggestions towards which the queen manifested the greatest repugnance.
Long, however, before the English penny had shrunk to its diminutive size, the want of small change was severely felt by the people of England; by the humble in the purchase of the cheaper necessaries of life, and by the rich in charitable distribution, when alms-giving was more general, or at least practised with less discrimination, than at the present day. Loud and oft repeated complaints were made, and petitions addressed to Parliament, praying for a relief from this grievance, which appears to have pressed most severely on the poor.

Although, in the days of the Anglo-Saxon kings, half-pence were certainly coined, their issue must have been extremely limited; and but a few solitary specimens exist at the present day in the cabinets of our collectors. The pennies of Edward the Confessor are common to excess; but only two examples of the half-pence of that king are known to exist. From the Conquest to the reign of Edward I., no English half-pence, or farthings, are known; but there are half-pence and farthings of John struck in Ireland. In the year 1279, an attempt was made to reform the English coinage, and a very large mintage of pennies, half-pence, and farthings took place; but the last mentioned are by no means common, while the pennies of the London Mint still abound; it may, therefore, be inferred that the pieces of the smaller denomination then minted were in very small proportion to the penny: indeed, this conjecture seems warranted by the fact, that in the reign of Richard II., A.D. 1330, the Commons again represented the great inconveniences which they sustained from the want of half-pennies and farthings, with which they had been accustomed to purchase small quantities of bread and beer, but which were then wanting all over England. They, therefore, petitioned that such coins might be made and circulated amongst the common people to their great relief, and that out of every pound weight coined, there should be made three-fourths of half-pennies and farthings, of the same weight and fineness as heretofore.* The answer to this was, that a certain quantity should be made for the ease of the people, with the advice of the Council.* The state of the English coinage, at this period, appears to have been most deplorable, but the greater evil was the want of small change.

It is more than probable, that long before this period, the English half-penny and farthing were represented by the penny cut into halves and quarters. Among several hoards discovered in this country, there have been found pennies cut in two for this obvious purpose; yet, notwithstanding this evidence, we have no proof that the practice was very general, and if resorted to for the purpose of supplying a moiety of the penny, the farthing, and perhaps its divisions, were represented by some of the very numerous examples of black money, then so abundant, of which a prodigious quantity appears to have been continually pouring in from the continent. It would be tedious to cite all the names of this spurious currency, or to attempt the etymologies of their various popular designations; it is enough for us to know that they must have supplied the place of legal coin. In the reigns of Henry IV., V. and VI., there must have been an extensive coinage of half-pence and farthings, for they are, even at this day, very common.† It was, perhaps, about this period that the tokens called "abbey pieces" were minted in vast numbers. They are, doubtless, of foreign execution, but the quantity found in England every year, shews that their currency in this country was universal. Though, possibly, originally intended for mere jettons and counters, there can scarcely be a doubt that they represented some division of the penny, most probably the "Cu," which in the Promptorium Parvulorum, is defined to be half a farthing. The constant device of the shield of arms (escu), which gave the name to some of the gold coins of the Continent, favours this conjecture. One of the most common of these pieces is here engraved.

* Ruding, sub anno 1380. vol. i. p. 238. Rot. Parl. iii. p. 66. The promise was kept, and half-pence are the most common of this king's coins.
† On the demolition of old London Bridge, great numbers were found round the starlings.
The legend of the obverse is AVE MARIA GRACIA PII.—i.e. Ave Maria gratia plena, the salutation of the angel Gabriel to the Virgin Mary. The reverse has A.V.E.M. in the angles of the cross. North, in his remarks on Clarke's conjectures, ingeniously surmises, that these pieces were intended as tessera sacra, and supposed they were used by monks and pilgrims travelling from one religious house to another; but, as we shall hereafter have to observe, though often applied to the use of jettons or counters, for which they might have been originally designed, they were probably as often used by communicants, and generally as a substitute for small change.

Nor were these pieces the only representatives of the smaller divisions of the English penny. Leaden tokens abounded with various devices, and continued in circulation, in some places, down to the year 1696. Their uses, like their types, were strangely diversified. Some circulated within the unhallowed precincts of the tavern;* others were called in requisition for solemn occasions.† Among the latter were the leaden pieces used as medals of presence at Bury Saint Edmunds. To this class belongs, perhaps, the example here engraved, and some may consider that the word DATE conveys an exhortation to alms-giving.

In the year 1846, a large parcel of leaden tokens was discovered during excavations in London. The principal varieties are engraved in our plate, and although the devices have an early style, there is some reason for supposing that such pieces were in actual circulation as late as the reign of Elizabeth, since the letter R, on one of them, appears to be of more modern date than the figures. The types are such as might be adopted by the keepers of taverns and houses of entertainment, rather than of a religious character.

The general debasement, by Henry VIII., of all the current coin of the realm must have deprived the people of all hope of attention to their necessities; and if records of clamouring for fractions of the penny are wanting, the presumption follows, that the people were by this time accustomed to the use of substitutes for those fractions, for the silver penny of this king... is by no means common at this time, the half-penny scarce, and the farthing one of the rarest coins in the English series. Elizabeth succeeded to the throne A.D. 1558, and immediately turned her attention to the state of the coinage. Her brother Edward VI., had begun the good work; but its consummation was achieved by Elizabeth. In this reign, the three-farthing piece, minted for the first time, was doubtless a most useful coin among the poor; but it was a mere spangle of silver, and in a purse or pocket must have been most inconvenient from its extreme minuteness.

Budelius* states that leaden money was current among the English in this reign, which shews that tokens in that metal were still in common circulation everywhere. Lead, tin, latten, and even leather, were stamped by grocers, vintners, chandlers, and alehouse-keepers, in great numbers; and as they were only to be repaid to the same shop from whence they were received, the loss to the poor was most grievous. Proposals were made to the queen for the coining of half-pence and farthings of base silver, seven ounces, sixteen grains fine, and four ounces, thirteen penny weights, eight grains alloy; the weight six grains and twelve grains.† Elizabeth, however, was averse to any debasement of the standard, and the matter remained in abeyance.

Notwithstanding the royal repugnance to a debased coinage, the design was not abandoned by the authorities of the mint. It was observed, that if farthings were minted of the standard of the other coins, these pieces would be of the weight of two grains only, and therefore of most inconvenient size. If increased by alloy to six grains, there would be eighty in every ounce; but if of copper, they might be made of one penny-weight each. Ultimately the queen was induced to listen to proposals for the coinage of copper pledges for farthings and half-pence, weighing respectively twelve and twenty-four grains.

grains. A proclamation was accordingly drawn up to sanction the currency of these pledges;* but it does not appear to have been published, nor were pieces in copper struck for circulation, though a few examples as patterns, both in silver and copper, exist in the cabinets of collectors.† Ruding thinks it probable that upon the failure of this project, the queen granted a license to the city of Bristol to coin copper tokens, having a ship on one side and C.B. (Civitas Bristol) on the other. They were current for small wares ten miles from that city.

From the foregoing accounts it will be seen, that though the evil of a spurious currency was felt and acknowledged, no decisive steps were taken to abate it. It was not until the year 1613, that the Government resolved to prohibit these illegal issues. A proclamation was made in this year to the effect, that in times past some toleration had existed in the realm, of tokens of lead, commonly known by the name of farthing tokens, to pass between vintners, tapsters, chandlers, bakers, and other like tradesmen and their customers; whereby such small portions and quantities of things vendible, as the necessity and use, especially of the poorer sort of people, oftentimes required, might be conveniently bought and sold, without enforcement to buy more ware than would serve for their use and occasions. But it objected, that the manner of issuing them and the use of them, as they passed only between customers, did not that good to the public, which might by a more general use be effected. That they were subject to counterfeiting, loss, and deceit; for sometimes they were refused as doubtful things, and sometimes, by the death or removal of those who gave them, were lost and discredited. And also, that it was some derogation to the royal prerogative, that such tokens should be allowed to have currency, in any degree, with the lawful money of the realm. Therefore notice was given by the proclamation, that his majesty, being willing to continue to his subjects the good arising from the use of such small moneys, under such directions and cautions as might restrain the abuse of them, had given power and authority, by letters patent, to John, Lord Harrington*, baron of Exeter, and his executors, administrators, deputies, and assigns, to make such a competent quantity of farthing tokens of copper, as might be conveniently issued amongst his subjects within the realms of England and Ireland, and the dominion of Wales, during the term mentioned in the said letters patent. That it was not his majesty's intention thereby to make them moneys, nor to force his subjects to receive them in payments, otherwise than with their own good liking; but only to give them license and means to use them according to their occasions, and that without any fee, charge, or constraint in any wise imposed upon them. The proclamation further declared, that the said farthing tokens should be made exactly and artificially of copper, by engines and instruments, having on the one side, two sceptres, crossing under one diadem; and on the other side, a harp crowned, with the king's title, JACOBVS DEI GRATIA MAGNÆ BRITANNIÆ FRANÇIÆ ET HIBERNIÆ REX; with a privy mark to be set upon them, from time to time, whereby to discern and distinguish them, and to be altered according to occasion, for preventing the falsifying and counterfeiting of the same. Such farthing tokens to pass for the value of farthings within the king's realms and dominions, with the liking and consent of his loving subjects.

The circulation of leaden tokens was prohibited after the feast of the nativity of Saint John the Baptist, and all magistrates, etc., were commanded to assist Lord Harrington in circulating the new tokens.† This command anticipated the

* Hence these pieces were popularly called Harringtons, by which name they are mentioned by some of the old dramatists.
† The patent was dated on the 10th of April, 1613, for the term of three years; and Lord Harrington "covenanted to account quarterly, and to pay into the receipt whatsoever the benefit should amount unto, within the said three years, above £20,000, all charges deducted, and a recognizance of £20,000 was entered into by him to perform the clause of account." (Sir J. Cesar's papers, folio 88, quoted by Ruding, vol. i. page 369.) Sir Robert Cotton had proposed that none should be enforced to take any, but in sums under twenty shillings, and then but the twentieth part proportionally. (Cotteri Posthuma, p. 199. Ruding, loc. cit.)
objections which were raised in some counties, especially in Derbyshire, Staffordshire, Flintshire and Denbighshire, where the people refused to take them, despite the printed bills circulated by the magistrates. Drunken Barnabie has immortalised these tokens and their patentee, in the following quaint lines:

Veni, Harrington, bonum omen!
Vere amans illud nomen,
Harringtoni dedi numum
Et fortunæ penè summum,
Indigenti postulanti,
Benedictionem danti.*

In the following year both Lord Harrington and his son and heir died, an event which furnished many traders with an excuse for not taking these tokens in payment; and it was doubted whether the proclamation still remained in force. A proclamation dated the 21st of June, preserved in the library of the Society of Antiquaries, declares that it still remains valid, confirms it in favour of Lady Anne Harrington (widow of the late patentee, and executrix of the will of John, Lord Harrington, her son), and her assigns, and orders that no alteration should be made in the stamp.

Notwithstanding the proclamations against the issue and circulation of private tokens, and the penalties denounced against the utterers, they still appear to have been in very general use: the evil had taken such firm root that no threats of pains or penalties could repress it. This is shewn by subsequent proclamations against private tokens, in the years 1615 and 1616.

On the accession of Charles the First, a proclamation was made prohibiting the circulation of any but the authorised tokens; and another granted to the duchess of Richmond and Sir Frances Crane, the exclusive right of minting farthing tokens, for the term of seventeen years. For this privilege the patentees were to pay to the king a yearly rent of one hundred marks. As an encouragement to their distribution the patentees covenanted to deliver twenty-one shillings in tokens, for every twenty shillings sterling.

In the year 1631, as appears by minutes of proceedings in the Star Chamber, it is shewn that the makers of counterfeit tokens sold them sometimes at the rate of twenty-six shillings in farthings for twenty shillings in sterling money.* By a proclamation of the year 1633, the counterfeiters of farthing tokens and their abettors were, upon conviction, to be fined one hundred pounds, to be set in the pillory in Cheapside, and thence whipped through the streets to Bridewell, where they were to be kept to hard work. If, afterwards, they were released, security was to be taken for their good behaviour. In the following year loud complaints were made regarding the farthing tokens, which engaged the deliberations of the Star Chamber, when it appeared that the evil complained of was, first, the number of counterfeit pieces† in circulation, and secondly the practice of knavish employers who paid them for wages to their workmen and labourers, in greater quantities than was ever contemplated by the Government.‡ A decree was, therefore, published that no one should pay above two pence in farthings, at one time; and it was declared to be unlawful to force such farthing tokens, in either great or small quantities, upon workmen, labourers, and other persons of humble vocations. It was also declared to be unlawful for persons to buy or sell farthing tokens at less rates than those ordained by proclamation. The provisions of this decree were published at Dublin, in the month of September following, by the Lord Deputy. Loss of ears or other corporal punishment, as the Court of Castle Chamber might determine, were the penalties against forgers of these coins.

INTRODUCTION.

The issue and circulation of great quantities of spurious farthing tokens still continuing, a proclamation dated the 1st March, 1635-6, declares that no farthing tokens should be current in England or Ireland, except those minted by royal authority. It was also declared illegal to compel any persons to take farthing tokens against their will. The proclamation then announces a new coinage of these farthings of copper with a piece of brass in the centre. This was stated to be a device by which they might be distinguished from all others, and the people protected from fraud.* The proclamation concludes by requiring all persons to take notice of the alteration in the farthing tokens above described, and also of the king's care for the re-change, which it was his will should be so guided and governed, that those who received the said tokens, in the use of their trades, might not be put to loss thereby, nor yet any be encouraged, under hope of the same, to get into their hands greater proportion of the said tokens than might well serve for their necessary use and occasions.†

It will be readily granted that if repeated proclamations, in peaceful days, were insufficient to prevent malpractices with the description of money under notice, the attempts were yet more feeble and impotent when the country was disturbed by civil discord. Ten years afterwards, the people of London complained bitterly of the farthing tokens, for which it was alleged there was no re-change, as guaranteed in the proclamation of 1635-6. The Common Council, being consulted on the subject, stated, that there was a sum of £1,500 in farthings, in the hands of the patentees, which if melted would contribute to satisfy the poor; and that the estate of the patentees might

* At this period, the red cross on the door of a house was a sign that the plague, or as it was then designated "the sickness," had seized on the inmates. The eruptions on the bodies of the infected persons were termed tokens. The Earl of Arundel, the patentee of these farthings, having locked up the mint-house, some wag wrote on the door, "Lord have mercy upon us, for this house is full of tokens!" add to this fund. The report recommends the decrying of the tokens and the coinage of farthings of intrinsic value in the Tower Mint.

On the 15th of February, 1642, the Commons referred to the committee for the advance of monies at Haberdashers' Hall, the sequestering of the rents and profits of the farthing token office; and by an order of the House dated the 12th of April, the minting of farthing tokens was stopped, and those already made, together with the tools and materials, were directed to be seized. In 1644, the Commons passed a resolution for raising five thousand pounds to be applied to the exchange of farthing tokens out of the estates of the patentees, agents, and contrivers; and the Lord Mayor was directed to call a court of Aldermen to consider how this might be effected, and the clamour, daily becoming more violent, be appeased. So serious, indeed, had the distress become, that the doors of the Parliament-house were daily besieged by fruitwomen, fishwomen, and others who obtained a livelihood by selling small wares. Some of these poor creatures had, says a pamphlet of the day,* as much as ten or twenty shillings in farthing tokens, while many tradesmen had even sixty pounds' worth. It was supposed that at this time there was about £100,000 in farthings dispersed throughout the kingdom, their sole value being now the weight of copper only.

Such was the lamentable state of a part of the English coinage just previous to the death of Charles on the scaffold. Encouraged by the civil distractions, tavern-keepers and tradesmen began to issue their tokens, struck in brass, and bearing their name and calling. Some of the devices and legends are curious enough, as may be seen by the following list: some blazon their utterers' loyalty, when many were glad to sink politics and save their property from confiscation; and tokens with the King's Head jingled in the citizen's pocket with the shillings and sixpences of "the Caesars of England," as witty Fuller styled the Commonwealth. Some bore promises to pay, in sterling coin, on demand: some circulated with the request, "Though I'm but brass, yet let me pass;" while others were inscribed with profane attempts at wit, as the tokens of a provincial tallow-chandler: TOVCH NOT MINE ANOINTED, AND DO MY PROFITS NO HARM. Thus, while the kingdom was divided by faction, and every tradesman issued HIS HALF-PENY or HIS FARTHING TOKEN, till impunity led some to stamp even pledges for a penny. This is the money for which the virtuous Evelyn expresses his contempt, and which he regarded as the spawn of the hydra of rebellion. "The tokens," says he, "which every tavern and tippling-house (in the days of late anarchy among us), presum'd to stamp and utter for immediate exchange, as they were passable through the neighbourhood, which, tho' seldom reaching further than the next street, or two, may, happily, in after-times come to exercise and business the learned critic what they should signify."* There was something prophetic in this; but the present generation are not disposed to subscribe to the dictum of Pinkerton; and, despite the disgust of loyal Evelyn, and the contempt of the most irate and rabid of scribes in our own day, they are not left to "the supreme scorn of the reader," but regarded as memorials of utility and interest to the antiquary, the topographer and the genealogist, who discovers in them many records of customs, persons, and places, all contributing to the sub-current of our history. In these mementos of troublous times and ill-constructed laws relating to the currency, even the statesman may find matter for serious reflection; and many a now proud and titled family may trace an ancestor in some dealer and chapman, whose name and calling are contained within the circumscribed area of a tradesman's token.

The pulpit was usurped by each impostor,

By way of rider to this introduction, we may here add a note or two on the subsequent history of the farthing. In the year 1649, patterns were struck in copper, bearing on one side a shield, charged with the cross of England, and the legend FARTHING

TOKENS OF ENGLAND—Reverse, a shield charged with the Irish harp, and the legend: FOR NECESSITY OF CHANGE, 1649. Another bore similar devices, with the legend: THE FARTHING TOKENS FOR THE RELEFE OF THE PORE. A third differed, in the addition of a laurel garland above the shield, and had the legend: ENGLAND'S FARTHING——FOR NECESSARY CHANGE. The second was struck with a piece of brass occupying the area of the inner circle, with a small stud of silver in the centre. Shortly after, there appeared farthings in copper, resembling in type the silver money of the Protector. One of these bore the legend: OLIVAR PRO. ENG. SC-IRL.——CHARITIE AND CHANGE. The other, which had no inner circle, bore the same device, with the legend: OLIVER PRO. ENG. SCO. & IRE.——CONVENIENT CHANGE. 1651. If it could be proved that the latter were struck by authority of the government, these pieces might give rise to many conjectures, since Oliver did not publicly assume the protectorship until the 16th December, 1653.

The other pattern farthings of this period were,—1. the head of the Protector, with a ship in full sail on the reverse; legend: AND GOD DIRECT OVR COVRS. 2. A similar obverse; on the reverse, three pillars bound together, surmounted by the English cross, Irish harp, and Scotch thistle; legend: THVS. VNITED INVINCIBLE.* About the same time appeared pewter farthings, having on the obverse a shield charged with a cross fourchy; above, a wreath of roses, with T.K. in the centre; legend: ¼ OVNCE FINE PEWT —Rev. a shield charged with the harp and surmounted by a laurel garland (the inner circle being filled by rays); legend: FOR NECESSARY CHANGE.† This last appears to have been in actual circulation; for in a newspaper of the time (16th March, 1653), there is a passage to this effect, "it is uncertain what will be done about farthing tokens;" and the same authority of the 27th April, 1654, announces these very tokens in the following words: "This night are come out new farthings, weighing a quarter of an ounce of fine pewter, which is but the price of new pewter, that so the people may never fear to lose by them," etc., etc.* This was an approximation to a rational coinage of farthings; but it was not till some time after the Restoration, that the subject ceased to be a source of inquietude to the Government.

During the very short period that Richard Cromwell held the reins of government, there was an agreement entered into for the coinage of copper farthings, of the weight of half a quarter of an ounce; but the project was abandoned, owing no doubt to the turn which politics began to take. In the year 1665, both half-pence and farthings were struck of a character assimilating to those of our own times. These bore the motto or legend QVATVOR MARIA VINDICO (in the exergue, BRITANNIA); which Leake says was withdrawn, as offensive to the French king, and they were called in; a fact which seems to imply that they had been in actual circulation. This pompous legend, on so insignificant a coin, provoked the sarcasms of Lord Lucas in Parliament, and his speech being printed after his death, was burnt by the hands of the common hangman. In 1672, similar farthings and half-pence, but with the word BRITANNIA only on the reverse, were made current by proclamation. The circulation of tradesmen's tokens was in the following year denounced under severe penalties. In 1684–5, just before the death of Charles, were struck farthings of tin, with a piece of copper in the centre, and with the words NUMMORMVM FAMVLVS, 1684. These peculiarities were adopted to render the counterfeiting of them more difficult, but they were forged in great numbers.

From this period the farthings of England have been struck in copper of about the size of those now current; and in the reign of Anne, an attempt was made to render their type classical, but this was not an age for such a consummation. Several patterns were struck at this time which are remarkable for spiritless design, though the workmanship of some is superior. One of these patterns is of considerable rarity. It has the figure of Britannia holding a spear and an olive branch, with the legend BELLO. ET. PACE, in indented letters on a raised border, a most inelegant fancy revived in our own times on the pennies of George the Third. The ordinary current farthing of Anne (date 1714), has Britannia seated with the same symbols, and is far less rare than popular tradition has led many to suppose, a specimen being easily procurable of any dealer in coins.

As these notes may fall into the hands of some who know but little of London topography, it may be as well to mention that Pannier Alley, originally so called from a shop at the corner bearing the sign of a pannier, is a narrow court, running from the extreme east end of Newgate-street, into Paternoster-row, just opposite Saint Martin's le Grand. Should the curious reader ever visit the locality, and the day happen to be fine, he may, in the penumbra of this court, espy a small sculptured stone in the wall beneath the baker's shop window, on which is the figure of a naked boy, seated on a roll of tobacco, and the inscription—

WHEN Y' HAVVE SOUGHT
THE CITTIE ROWND
YET STILL THIS IS THE HIGHS' GROUND
AVGVST THE 27

Robert Hayes appears to have made his tokens serve the purpose of an advertisement, giving notice of his removal to Barbican, where he sometimes perhaps refreshed the Finsbury archer or the train-band captains after a field day. His second coinage is a great improvement upon his first, being of neater and more careful execution.

"The Drake" stood next to "The Ship." It was doubtless a rebus, and alluded to the admiral, who was very popular in the reign of Elizabeth, the mint-mark of the martlett on her coins being termed by the vulgar a drake. The situation of this sign near the Ship was appropriate enough.

163. THE MAIRMEAD TAVERN. A mermaid.—R. AT BILLINGSGATE, 1650. In the field, V. I. H.

This Tavern was situated in St. Mary at Hill, facing Billingsgate. It was held on lease from the city of London. Francis Heath, who states, after the great fire, that he has an interest in the lease, was, probably, a brother or near relation of the utterer, whose initials appear on the token.—M. S. penes. T. W. King, Esq., York Herald.

164. THE SALVTATION TAVERN. Two figures, in the costume of the period, saluting each other.—R. AT BILLINGSGATE. In the field, R. S. M.

We suspect the device of this token to be a perversion, and that the original sign really represented the salutation of the Virgin by the angel—"AVE MARIA, GRACIA PLENA"—a well-known legend on the jettons of the middle ages.* The change of representation was probably accommodated to the times. The taverns at that period were the "gossipping shops" of the neighbourhood; and both puritan and church man frequented them for the sake of hearing the news, which in the days when morning and evening newspapers were not published, brought many together, like the Athenians of old, "to hear some new thing." The puritans loved the good things of this world, and relished a cup of Canary, or Noll's nose lied holding the maxim—

"Though the devil trepan
The Adamical man,
The saint stands uninfected."

Hence, perhaps, the salutation of the Virgin was exchanged for the "booin' and scrapin'" scene represented on this token. This tavern, which still exists, was celebrated in the days of Queen Elizabeth. In some old black letter doggerel, entitled, "News from Bartholemew Fayre," it is thus mentioned:—

"There hath been great sale and utterance of wine,
Besides beere, and ale, and Ipocras fine;
In every country, region, and nation,
But chiefly in Billingsgate, at the Salutation."

Though stated to be a farthing's worth of copper, the farthings issued by Government a short time afterwards, negative the assertion, for they are three times heavier than this token. This example, like many others of its class, bears the date 1666, the year of the great fire, in which a great many tokens were struck, as appears by these lists.

* The license which our notice of these tokens gives, affords us the opportunity of remarking, that in our boyish days we heard of strange wilful perversions of the names of well-known inns and public-houses: thus, in metropolitan slang, the "Elephant and Castle" was the Pig and Tinder-Box; the "Bear and Ragged Staff" the Angel and Flute; and the "Pig in the Pound," the Gentleman in Trouble!

† In the same way an Inn in Holborn had for sign a Bull and a Gate, the popular version, or rather perversion, of Boulogne Gate.

BUTCHER ROW.

Butcher Row once stood in the open space between Ship Yard and the end of Picket-street, without Temple Bar. It received its designation from its being a flesh market, founded in the reign of Edward the First. The whole of the tenements, which were of wretched appearance—the type of a great many streets in ancient London—were removed by the exertions of Mr. Alderman Picket, whose name the street now bears. From the “Bear and Harrow” in Butcher Row, Nat Lee, the mad poet, departed reeling drunk, and perished in the snow, not far from the spot, in the darkness of a winter's night. Here was the celebrated Betty’s Chop-house, and the Eating-house (Clifton’s) where Dr. Johnson used to dine.

This token, like many others of the period, is of an octagonal shape. The device of the obverse shows that the citizens sometimes took a pipe with their coffee after the oriental custom; but, instead of the long tchibouk, we have a couple of short pipes of the same character as those so often dug up in our London excavations, the shape of which is so well given in Teniers's smoking scenes.

“The Hole in the Wall” still exists in Chancery Lane. It was a popular sign, and several taverns bore the same designation, which probably originated in a certain tavern being situated in some umbrageous recess in the old city walls. Many of the most popular and most frequented taverns of the present day are located in twilight courts and alleys, into which Phoebus peeps at Midsummer tide only when on the meridian. Such localities may have been selected on more than one account: they not only afforded good skulking
"holes" for those who love drinking better than work; but beer and other liquors keep better in the shale. These haunts, like Lady Mary's farm, were—

"In summer shady, and in winter warm."

Rawhns, the engraver of the fine and much coveted Oxford Crown, with a view of the city under the horse, dates a quaint supplicatory letter to John Evelyn, "from the Hole in the Wall, in St. Martin's,"* no misnomer, we will be sworn, in that aggregation of debt and dissipation, when debtors were imprisoned with a very remote chance of redemption. In the days of Rye-House and Meal-Tub plots, philanthropy overlooked such little matters; and Small Debts Bills were not dreamt of in the philosophy of speculative legislators. Among other places which bore the designation of the Hole in the Wall, there was one in Chandos Street, in which the famous Duval, the highwayman, was apprehended after an attack on—two bottles of wine, probably drugged by a "friend" or mistress.†

370. THE KINGS HEAD TAVERN. The bust of Henry the Eighth.—R. AT CHANCERY LANE END. In the field, T. A. K.

In the reign of Charles II., the Earl of Shaftesbury was president of the Green Ribbon Club, who held their meetings here, and were supposed to be the principal promoters of the "Pope-burning tumults," Roger North says, "their seat was in a sort of carfour, at Chancery Lane End."—The two tokens here described differ materially from each other, and seem to shew that the tavern had changed landlords.

† We have before us a small tract of the time, which professes to give an account of this fellow, partly serious, partly bantering, partly condemnatory, partly apologetical; but we confess, that we can see nothing to justify his exaltation by the gentlemen of the Newgate School of Romance. We, however, must wonder at nothing, when one of them condescends to make the cold blooded, cruel, and calculating Eugene Aram, the hero of his romance, and to represent him in love! The only thing that can be said in favour of highwaymen is, that they were rarely murderers, and never murderers in cold blood. What a change has taken place in society, long since these tokens were current in London, ay, even within the last fifty years. Sir Richard Birnie, the well-known police magistrate, once remarked, in a tone which seemed almost to indicate that he deplored what might be deemed the decay of national spirit, that he "had not heard of a mounted highwayman for thirty years"! So recent as the days of George the Second, people were brought to a stand by highwaymen as they crossed Covent Garden in their chairs; and the parks and suburbs of London, after dark, were left to the desperate of both sexes. Now-a-days, a child might walk from Tyburn to Mile-End at midnight without fear! Still, if we take the aggregate of swindling, "hocussing," and petty larceny, with a number of other mean and dastardly vices in our own generation, and place them against the burglaries and highway robberies in the days of our grandfathers, the present race will have little to boast of.

Another example of the tokens issued by Coffee House Keepers, and bearing a later date.

The topography of ancient London is not always well made out; and the mention of the Mermaid in Cheapside would leave us in some doubt as to whether it is the famed Mermaid of Ben Jonson, if "the Mermaid in Chepe" were not the ordinary appellation of the tavern in those palmy days. There were many taverns with this sign; but we can hardly suppose that there was a Mermaid in Cheapside, and another—the celebrated one—hard by, in Bread Street. We can only reconcile this by the conjecture that there was a back entrance to the Mermaid in Bread Street from Cheapside. Many taverns in this neighbourhood are to be found at the ends of courts running out of the great thoroughfare. If our token, as doubtless it is, be really of the tavern which Jonson and his friends haunted, it was of no less repute than "The Devil" in Fleet Street, being the resort of all the wits and poets of the day.

Those who are acquainted with the topography of London, will smile at the fact of a coffee-house having flourished in this obscure nook, the features of which, on the re-building of the city, must have been entirely changed. See the note under the Swan at Dowgate. The utterer of this token appears to have afterwards taken to himself a wife and removed to Bishopsgate Street (cf. p. 32, No. 186).

It is easy to perceive what is intended by the representation on the obverse of this token. Though "Little John," we are told, stood upwards of six good English feet without his shoes, he is here depicted to suit the popular humour—a dwarf in size, compared with his friend and leader, the bold outlaw. The proximity of Chiswell-street to Finsbury-fields may have led to the adoption of the sign, which was doubtless at a time when archery was considered an elegant as well as indispensable accomplishment of an English gentleman. It is far from obsolete now, as several low public houses and beer-shops in the vicinity of London testify. One of them exhibits Robin Hood and his companion dressed in the most approved style of "Ashley's," and underneath the group is the following irresistible invitation to slake your thirst:

"Ye archers bold and yeomen good,
Stop and drink with Robin Hood:
If Robin Hood is not at home,
Stop and drink with Little John."

Our London readers could doubtless supply the variorum copies of this elegant distich, which, as this is an age for "Family Shaksperes," modernised Chaucers, and new versions of "Robin Hood's Garland," we recommend to the notice of the next editor of the ballads in praise of the Sherwood Freebooter.

"This token of the Star," says a friend, "reminds me of a jeu d'esprit which I met with in my school-boy days. A citizen of London being a passenger in a coasting-vessel, overtaken, when at a distance from land, by a violent storm, instead of assisting to lighten the ship, or lending any aid whatever, sat wringing his hands, and crying out,

'O that I could see two stars,
Or only one of the two!"

"His incessant repetition of these words attracted the notice of the captain, who abused him for a lubber, and asked what he meant by his constant cry of:—

'O that I could see two stars,
Or only one of the two.'"

"His answer is thus recorded:—

'I mean,' said he, 'where our club did meet,
But shall never meet again;
Either the Star in Coleman-street,
Or the Star in Pudding Lane!'"

This token gives us the name of the person who issued it, who, probably, from the cognisance being the same, was a member of the family of, if not the proprietor of the Rose Tavern: or it might be his widow, unequal as a "lone woman" to the duties of hostess of a bustling house of resort: or, peradventure, mine host was found after his death to be insolvent, and the goodwill of the tavern was put up to auction (see No. 498). The brutal sport of throwing at cocks at Shrove-tide, was long a reproach to our countrymen. In our boyhood we often heard of, though we were never pained by witnessing, this cruel pastime, which in Wiltshire is called “cock squoling,” but we have seen the callow brood of sparrows, and other birds used in the same way. It seems probable that the sign of the cock to these houses, was an indication that cock-throwing was one of the diversions of the garden or court at the rear, just as we now see the tempting intimation, “a dry skittle ground.”* This sport was practised openly as will be seen, not only by the

* A friend observes of this token:—“William Brandon’s tokens reminds me of the sports of my boyish days, when at school at Richmond, in Yorkshire. We had a game called ‘Dumps,’ which consisted of throwing or pitching pieces of lead cut into the shape of buttons, or counters about the size of farthings at a small leaden figure of a cock. The player gave to the owner of Diary of Pepys, but also by the following extract from the Protestant Mercury of the 14th of February, 1700.—"Last Tuesday a Brewer's servant in Southwark, took his walks round Tower-hill, Moor-fields, and Lincoln's-inn-fields, and knocked down so many cocks, that by selling them again, he returned home twenty-eight shillings odd pence a richer man than he came out."

Pepys' Diary, (p. 108, ed. 1848). This neighbourhood was entirely changed after the rebuilding of London. A house capable of furnishing such an entertainment will be looked for in vain.

can be inferred that the cock, so many 'dumps,' for a certain number of throws, who gave to the player so many dumps if he knocked the cock over. Though we were perfectly unconscious of the origin of our game, yet there can scarcely be a doubt, that it was derived from the cruel sport of cock-throwing."

In former times when the national animosity ran high, this sport was the more popular among our ancestors, from the word Gallus denoting either a Cock or a Frenchman. At Blenheim House there is a sculpture of a cock expiring beneath the paw of a lion, an allegory designed by Sir John Vanburgh, which gave rise to the following epigram:—

"Had Marlbro's troops in Gaul no better fought,
Than Van to grace his fame in marble wrought;
No more in arms than he in emblems skilled,
The Cock had drove the lion from the field!"

This device is not uncommon on the medals of William III. and Anne.

We shall not detain the reader long over this token; but it may be observed that the tankard here represented is of the shape of those of the period, yet to be seen in some old houses, and in the halls of our corporate bodies on feast days. Tankards were intended to hold a toast, and for this purpose had a broad base, so that the sop did not come with a splash into the eyes of the drinker, when he raised the vessel to his lips, as is often the case with our modern shaped tankards.

The issuer of this token styles himself a "changer of farthings," obviously the exchange of tokens of this description for authorised currency, charging no doubt a brokerage or commission on the transaction. The profits of such a business, must, however, have been very small, and was perhaps joined to some trade. By the device of our κολυμβίστηρος—the wheatsheaf and bird,—he appears to have been either a baker or a cornchandler.

Stow gives us a glimpse of the locality in which this sign figured — "Hercules Pillers Alley, on the south side of Fleet-street, near Saint Dunstan's Church" (View of London, 8vo. 1708, p. 38). Strype says, — "Hercules Pillars Alley, but narrow, and altogether inhabited by such as keep public-houses for entertainment, for which it is of note" (p. 277).

It is well known that James Farr kept the Rainbow in Fleet Street, at the time of the great fire, the very year of which is marked on this token; or some might be disposed to question the propriety of our designating the unetherial object on the obverse, a rainbow. Farr was a barber, and, in the year 1657, was presented by the inquest of St. Dunstan's in the west, for making and selling "a sort of liquor called 'coffee,'" which was described as a great nuisance and prejudice to the neighbourhood! The house known by the sign of the Rainbow, appears to have been let off into tenements, for there were books printed at this very time "for Samuel Speed, at the sign of the Rainbow, near the Inner Temple-gate, in Fleet Street." This kind of division appears to have been not uncommon. Izaac Walton, whose place of business was at the sign of the Harrow, just opposite, occupied the house jointly with a brother tradesman.

From this example, it would seem that the locality, called Hercules Pillars Alley, like other places in London, took its name from the tavern. The mode of representing the pillars of Hercules is somewhat novel; and, but for the inscription, we should have supposed the figure to represent Sampson clutching the pillars of the temple of Dagon. At the trial of Stephen Colledge, for high treason, in 1681, an Irishman named Haynes, swore that he walked to the Hercules Pillars with the accused, and that in a room up-stairs Colledge spoke of his treasonable designs and feelings. On another occasion the parties walked from Richard’s coffee-house to this tavern, where it was sworn they had a similar conference. Colledge, in his defence, denies the truth of the allegation, and declares that the walk from the coffee-house to the tavern is not more than a bow-shot, and that during such walk the witness had all the conversation to himself, though he had sworn that treasonable expressions were made use of on their way thither. Pepys frequented this tavern: in one part of his Diary he says, “with Mr. Creed to Hercules Pillars, where we drank” (p. 142). In another, “in Fleet-street I met with Mr. Salisbury, who is now grown in less than two years’ time so great a limmer that he is become excellent and gets a great deal of money at it. I took him to Hercules Pillars to drink” (p. 257). See the Token No. 734.

722. WILLIAM PAGET AT THE. A mitre.—R. MITRE IN FLEET STREET. In the field, W. E. P.

The Mitre still flourishes in Mitre-court, Fleet-street, nearly “over against” Fetter-lane, and, like most houses in the vicinity of the inns of court, can boast of good fare. Pepys sometimes looked in here to drink with a friend. It was once the resort of men known to literature and science; amongst others, of Johnson and his follower and admirer, Boswell. In that amusing volume, “The Gold-headed Cane,” by the late Dr. Macmichael, the following passage occurs: Dr. Radcliff, loquitur:—“I never recollect to have spent a more delightful evening, than that at the Mitre Tavern, in Fleet-street, where my good friend Billy Nutly, who was indeed the better half of me, had been prevailed upon to accept of a small temporary assistance, and joined our party, the Earl of Denbigh, Lords Colepeper and Stowel, and Mr. Blackmore.”—Here the Society of Antiquaries met, before apartments were assigned to them in Somerset-house. “The society, hitherto having no house of their own,” says Maitland, “meet every Thursday evening about seven o’clock, at the Mitre Tavern, in Fleet-street, where antiquities are produced and considered, draughts and impressions thereof taken, dissertations read, and minutes of the several transactions entered; and the whole economy under such admirable regulations, that probably in a short time they may apply for a royal power of incorporation.”* Mitre Court was within the precincts of the Sanctuary.

Few of our London readers can be in a state so benighted as to be ignorant of the situation of this venerable house of entertainment. Strangers will find it a few doors east of Temple Bar, near Bell-yard, by its sign, which, carved in wood, and gilded like a weathercock, stands, and doubtless has stood for a couple of centuries, over the door. Perhaps this quaintly carved figure was snatched from the threatened dwelling by some civic Eneas, when "the great and dreadfull fier" was laying old London in ashes; and, after a time, again mounted as a beacon to way-worn and famished men. Or does it date only from the re-building of the city? Some metropolitan Dryasdust will perhaps give us its history. The "Cock" is now famous, not only for its chops and steaks, but also for its brown stout; that beverage, with its "aromatic bitter," which Dr. Carus evidently preferred to the Braunbier of his own father-land, when he visited England lately with his majesty the king of Saxony.* The house is much frequented by lawyers and law-students. We will be sworn that many of our judges in their youthful days have taken their chop here; and that in earlier times Ben Jonson and honest Izaac Walton have drunk their morning draught (the latter, whose house of business was only a door or two off, tells us he took nothing more for breakfast) at the Cock ale-house. The above cut is from a specimen in the possession of the present landlord.

During the raging of the great plague, the following announcement was made by the master of the Cock tavern:—"This is to notify, that the master of the Cock and Bottle, commonly called the Cock ale-house, at Temple Bar, hath dismissed his servants, and shut up his house for this long vacation,† intending (God willing), to return at Michaelmas next; so that all persons whatsoever who

* See the doctor's recently published journal, passim. We are acquainted with a French numismatist, whose eye this may meet, who loved English stout as much as Dr. Carus, greatly preferring it to the brandied ports and sherries of this country. Alfred Tennyson assures us, that the port dispensed here is inspiring. See his "Will Waterproof's Lyrical Monologue."

736. AT THE D. AND DVNSTANS. The representation of the saint standing at his anvil, and pulling the nose of the "D." with his pincers.—R. WITHIN TEMPLE BARRE. In the field, I. S. W.

This was the celebrated Devil tavern, so much frequented by Ben Jonson and his friends. Mark the propriety which restricts the name of his infernal highness to the bare initial! — "the D. and DVNSTAN." Was Boniface's wife a puritan, and forbade any irreverent mention of the devil on her husband's tokens? Or was he, too, like mine host o' the Salutation (see No. 164), unwilling to give offence to the sectarians who visited his house? The initials in the field of the reverse, seem to indicate that one of the Wadloe family still kept the tavern. Simon Wadloe was mine host in the days of Ben Jonson, who dubbed him "king of skinkers." The popular legend is well expressed on this rare, and perhaps unique token. The fiend is seized by the nose by the saint, while engaged at the anvil after the wont of the early ecclesiastics, who were carefully admonished, by the Anglo-Saxon laws, to betake themselves to some handicraft, and thereby eschew idleness. On a visit to the remains of Mayfield Palace, in Sussex, a few years since, the reputed scene of the encounter, we were shown "the same 'dentical pinchers' with which the resolute saint performed his feat." They were large enough for the snout of leviathan. Observe, St. Dunstan works in his mitre, and not in a paper-cap, and the enemy of mankind has the usual attributes with which the painters of the middle ages invested him. Having placed a triple crown on the head of the Deity, they next materialised the devil, and adorned him with the characteristics of a satyr.

* In the hall of the Goldsmiths' Company is the picture of Saint Dunstan pulling the nose of the devil, while the heavenly host above look on and applaud the deed. "It appears by this," says Pennant, "that Saint Dunstan amused himself in works of gold, as well as iron; so that it is no wonder to see the evil spirit in a place where the irritamenta malorum so much abound." The goldsmiths usually performed the legend of St. Dunstan whenever one of their guild was inaugurated Lord Mayor.

The rambler in London will look in vain for the Devil Tavern beneath the shade of Temple Bar. The house, with a modern front, is now the bank of Messrs. Child,* who have preserved the Leges Conviviales in the Apollo Room where Ben Jonson and his friends held their orgies. Sack and ale no longer flow here, and if any thing "short" is dispensed, it is the shortest change of a check.

737. AT THE KINGS HEAD. The bust of Henry VIII. — R. IN FLEET STRETE. Letters deterited.

The bust on this token resembles that on several others; and, though rudely executed, conveys no bad idea of the portraiture of the English Herod. A friend observes, that for two centuries "the King's Head" meant Henry the Eighth, and the sign of "the Queen's Head" Queen Elizabeth.

828. JOHN SAPCOTT AT YE BORESHED. A boar’s head.—R. TAVERNE IN GREAT EASTCHEAP. In the field, HIS 1⁰, I. E. S.

Here is a token without date, but doubtless struck after Eastcheap had risen from its ashes.* It shews us that the Boar’s head had changed hands after the great fire, for John Sapcott is the name of mine host on the pledge for a penny. That of the smaller denomination (No. 830), bears a boar’s head,

* These tokens of a larger denomination appear to have been of a later issue than those representing the farthing and halfpenny. They are generally without date, and their appearance must have called imperatively for the reformation of the coinage, and the suppression of such a spurious currency. Had this not taken place, the curious would doubtless have in their cabinets examples of silver coins, struck by London Tradesmen.
with a true heraldic grin; but this displays the same object under a more inviting aspect, appealing irresistibly “aux gourmands.” *

![Image of token]

This token is of an earlier period than No. 828, and was evidently in circulation before the destruction of the old city. What a host of associations crowd upon us as we examine this pledge for better coin. The Boar’s Head in Great Eastcheap! We hear Falstaff’s snore behind the arras, Prince Hal’s “Anon!” Pistol’s fustian rant, and Mistress Doll’s abuse; and, in our mind’s eye, we see the mad prince break fat Sir John’s head, “for likening his father to a singing man of Windsor.” Though this pseudo moneta dates from a later period, the tavern at the time of its issue had not been greatly changed since the days when Shakspeare wrote. But Eastcheap, long before it was swept away by the improved approaches to London Bridge, had nothing in its appearance to attract the antiquary—the “great fire” had destroyed every ancient dwelling, every vestige of the picturesque, in that quarter. The boar’s head, carved in stone, and the work of a later day, was fixed in the wall of the modern house which stood on the site of the ancient tavern, and was occupied by a gunsmith at the time of its demolition.†

831. AT THE HARTS HORNES. In the field, H. N.—R. IN GREAT EASTCHEAP. A pair of antlers.

* It seems probable that the Boar’s head was originally a cook’s shop, in the days of Lydgate, and one of those in which “hot ribbes of beef rosted, and pies well baked,” were dispensed, with other creature comforts. In the month of February, 1717, one Austin, an inventor of the “Persian ink powder,” in an extravagant fit of gratitude to his customers, announced that he had selected the Boar’s head tavern, in Eastcheap, for their reception, where he would have prepared for them a pudding weighing 900 lbs., and a cake of similar weight, to be served to the music of a huge drum, once used in the Turkish army, and eighteen feet in length! The copper for boiling the pudding was erected at the Red Lion in Southwark Park, where crowds of people went to see it. It was intended to be conveyed to the Swan Tavern, Fish Street Hill, to the tune of “What lumps of plum-pudding my mother gave me.” These shifting of the scene of action show that the landlords dreaded an irritation of the mob. It was finally resolved to dispense the huge pudding in St. George’s Fields, but the escort was attacked by the populace on its way thither, and the Brobdignagian confection demolished in a twinkling!

HALF MOON COURT.

859. AT THE HALFE MOON. A crescent.—R. IN THE CORTE, 1648. In the field, ... II. B.

The year 1648, is the earliest that occurs on this class of tokens: and being somewhat scarce, many persons, failing to obtain a specimen, have doubted the existence of such a date on this description of money. That they were, however, struck as early as this year, is proved by other specimens in the collection of the British Museum. One of "the Seven Stars, in Cornhill," is also dated 1648. "The Half-Moon in the Corte," is a peculiar style, evidently implying the court of that name, or as the Scotch say, "of that ilk." There are divers Half-moon courts in London. The tavern of that name in Gracechurch Street stands at the corner of Half-Moon Passage; and an inn of the same designation is in a court or passage of the same name in Bishopsgate. We leave it to the learned in London topography to fix the locality of this token.

933. At y. Coffe Houze Against. In the centre, Henry Muscvt, and a hand holding a cup of coffee.—R. Brook Houze in Holborn, his halfpenny. H. E. M. In seven lines across the field.

Brook House, so called after Fulke Greville, Lord Brooke, the friend of Sir Philip Sydney, stood on the site of the present Brook Street, near Furnival's Inn: so that Muscut's coffee-house must have been on the opposite side of Holborn, near the gateway of Staples Inn. The fanciful and somewhat inconvenient shape of his token, was adopted by others at this period, probably to attract notice.

This locality is mentioned by several authors as the resort of pawnbrokers and usurers. An old satirical poem, printed in 1611, under the title "The Letting of Humour's Blood in the Head-veine," has the following topographical allusions:

"Oh Sir, why that's as true as you are here:
With one example I will make it cleere;
And far to fetch the same I will not goe,
But unto Houndsditch, to the Brokers' Row;
Or any place where that trade doth remaine,
Whether at Holborne Conduit, or Long Lane."

There is a tradition that the origin of this sign, and not only of the inn, but also of the name of the court in which it is situate, was derived from that of Isabella Savage, whose property they once were, and who conveyed them by deed to the Cutlers' Company. But that it had another origin is shewn by Addison in the "Spectator." "As for the Bell Savage," he says, "which is the sign of a savage man standing by a bell, I was formerly very much puzzled upon the conceit of it, till I accidentally fell into the reading of an old romance, translated out of the French, which gave an account of a very beautiful woman, who was found in a wilderness, and is called in the French 'La Belle Sauvage,' and is every where translated by our countrymen to Bell Savage."

That this was the popular story is plainly seen by our token. When Sir Thomas Wyatt declared for Lady Jane Grey, he found Lud Gate shut against him, and flinging himself in despair upon a bench, close to this inn, surrendered to the herald.

NEW FISH STREET.

1337. THO. BLAGRAVE, KINGS. Bust of Henry VIII. holding the sceptre.—R. HEAD NEW FISH STREET. In the field, T. I. B.

The King's Head in Bridge Street, or, as it was more commonly called, New Fish Street, was, at one time, held by a person named Thomas Benson, who by indenture assigned his interest to the utterer of this token. The premises were destroyed in the great fire; and by the decree of the judges in 1688, they are to be rebuilt, with two shops on each side of the entrance to the tavern, "for fishmongers or other trades, fronting to Fish Street."—(MS. penes T. W. King, Esq., York Herald). Thomas Blagrave, however, appears to have been a specimen of the rolling-stone, for we find him also, by another token, in Threadneedle Street. The sign appears to have been an old one. On the — of January, 1561-2, the company of fishmongers dined at this tavern (Machyn's Diary, p. 275).

This house seems to have been of some repute at this time. Pepys in his "Diary" (Dec. 22, 1660), says: "Went to the Sun Taverne, on Fish Street-hill, to a dinner of Captain Teddimans, where was my Lord Inchiquin (who seems to be a very fine person), Sir W. Penn, Captain Cuttance, and one Mr. Lawrence (a fine gentleman, now going to Algiers), and other good company, where we had a very fine dinner, good musique, and a great deal of wine. I very merry—went to bed: my head aching all night!" The quantity, and not the quality of mine host's wine, doubtless gave this result.

In Philip Henslow's Diary, recently published by the Shakspere Society, there are notices of "payments on account," to Day, Smith and Hathaway, for a play called "The Black Dog of Newgate," which they either wrote or were to have written. In Hibbert's catalogue of rare books sold in 1829 is "A Discovery of a London Monster, called the Black Dog of Newgate. Printed by G. Eld, for Rob. Wilson, 1612." The author is supposed to have been Luke Hutton.* The tavern called the "Black Dog" was much frequented by literary men; and in the work in question, are stanzas entitled "Certaine Fearful Visions appearing to the Author of this Booke," which are supposed to have been written here.

This token is curious as presenting us with the effigies of Henry the Eighth's famous jester, Will Somers, whose wit and talent and inoffensive manners made him a great favourite with that monarch and his court. He is here represented, as in the well-known print, wearing a cap and feather, and a long gown, and holding a sort of hunting-horn. Our token is too small for the details of his costume; but it is no doubt intended to be exactly like that in the engraving, underneath which are the lines:—

"What though thou think'st mee clad in strange attire, Knowe I am suted to my owne desire;
And yet the characters describ'd upon mee,
May shew thee that a king bestow'd them on mee;
This Horne I have betokens Sommers game,
Which sportive tyume will bid thee reade my name;
All with my nature well agreeing too,
As both the Name, and Tyme, and Habit doe."

The utterer of this token styles himself a "strong water man," i.e. a vendor of Geneva, brandy, and other cordials; a detestable traffic, which increased to such an extent, that, in the early part of the next century, the evil cried aloud for the interposition of the Government. In the year 1725, the justices of the peace for the county of Middlesex, assembled in quarter sessions, reported at considerable length on this abominable trade. They state that "all chandlers, many tobacconists, and several who sell fruit or herbs in stalls, or wheel-barrows, sell Geneva; and many inferior tradesmen begin now to keep it in their shops for their customers." Our numerous modern gin-palaces are miserable evidence that the abuse still exists though in another form.

CURRENT IN LONDON.

1456. Peter Beale Mealman at. In the field, his halfpenny.—R. Ye Park Gate in Southwark. In the field, a blazing star between P. B.

The locality mentioned on this Token, formed part of the domain of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, the favourite of Henry VIII. His mansion stood nearly opposite the spot where the present St. George's Church stands, and was surrounded by a small park and ornamental gardens. After the death of the Duke, the property reverted to the king, who established a mint there. The neighbourhood is still known as "the Mint," and has enjoyed for a long time a very equivocal reputation. In the days of our grandfathers, it was the lurking-place of all the idle and profligate on the Surrey side of the Thames, and at the present time has not quite lost its character. The neighbourhood thoroughfares, known as Suffolk Street, Park Street, etc., preserve the memory of the Duke's mansion.

Paternoster Row.

1458. Thomas Allen in, 1664. The bust of a queen, crowned with an open crown, and holding a sceptre.—R. Paternoster Row. In the field, his halfe penny.

Maitland says, that the doctors and proctors, before they removed to the college (Doctors' Commons), "cohabited at a small house, now the Queen's Head Tavern, Paternoster Row." See note under the next Token.

1459. Ye Mearmayd Tavern. A mermaid.—R. In Paternoster Row. In the field, S. E. B.

The Mermaid in Paternoster Row, was, at the time of the great fire, in the occupation of one Anthony Clarke, who, in his petition, states that it was "formerly a dark and back-house of small custom, but that the Prerogative office was kept near to it, and that the said office being removed, it is not likely to be well customed for a long time" (MS. penes, T. W. King, Esq., York Herald).

1460. The Castell Tavern. A castle.—R. In Paternoster Roe. In the field, I. D. B.

Paul's Alley.

1461. John Broome, 1657. A square building with many windows.—R. In Paul's Alley. In the field, I. E. B.
PAUL'S CHAIN.

Paul's Chain is still the name of the street leading into Saint Paul's Churchyard, opposite the south door of the cathedral. The antiquary need not be reminded that in the cities of the middle ages, posts and chains were usually placed in the most important streets and thoroughfares. London had many of these defences down to the seventeenth century. The citizens having offended Henry III. during his wars with the barons, the king took away many of their privileges, and removed their posts and chains, which were locked up in the Tower.† Evelyn, in his account of the fire of London, says, "the vast yron chaines of the cittie streetes, etc., were many of them melted and reduced to cinders by ye vehement heate."

1463. Thomas Swettingham. A castle.—R. in Pavles Chaine. In the field, His Halfepenny.

1464. Edw. Woodward at ye. Two daggers or swords crossed in saltier.—R. Pavls Chayne, Cooke. In the field, E.A.W.

PAUL'S WHARF.

1465. Abraham Chitty at ye Bell. In the field, His Halfepeny, 1669.—R. Brewhoys near Pavles Warfe. A bell between two cinquefoils. (Octagonal.)

* The apothecaries were originally incorporated with the grocers or "pepperers" as they were anciently styled, but at their request, about eleven years afterwards, James granted them a distinct charter of incorporation. At this time there were only one hundred and four master apothecaries within the city and suburbs. There are now upwards of a thousand, not including those who style themselves "Surgeon, etc."

They were the last on the city list of chartered companies; hence the allusion in the following lines:—

"See! where the prond Apothecaries drive,
Who most by fraud and impositions thrive;
Whose monstros bills inmoderate wealth procure,
For drugs that kill as many as they cure;
Well are they placed the last of all the rout,
For they're the men we best could live without."

† When Devereux, Earl of Essex, made his rash attempt to raise the Londoners, he posted, with about two hundred men, to the Sheriff's house, hoping to enlist him in the cause; but that officer stepped out at his back door, and the earl making haste back again, found the chain at the top of Ludgate Street drawn across and guarded; and after a short skirmish he retreated, and took boat at Queenhithe.
1466. THE BALL NEERE. In the field, 6d. — R. PAVLES WHARFE. In the field, I. II.

This Token is remarkable for the 6d. which is stamped on it. Its circulation must have been very limited.

1467. THE FRIEN PAN IN BEL. A fryingpan.—R. YARD BY POWLS WHARF. In the field, D. I. T.

We are unable to tell the reader any thing of the "Frien Pan," or even to give the name of the worthy who traded beneath it. He was probably a dealer in ironmongery.

PEACOCK ALLEY.

1468. ISAAC BLISSETT IN WIT CHAPEL. A peacock.—R. AT PEACOCK ALLEY GATE. In the field, I. II. B. 1667.

Pickle Herring Stairs.

1508. James Aycrigg at. In the field, His Half Penny.—R. Pickle Herring Stairs. An elephant with a castle on its back.

1509. Edward Brent. A smack.—R. At Pickell Herring. In the field, E. C. B.

1510. Margaret Browne at ye Blue. An anchor and M. B.—R. Neare Pickle Hering in Southwark His Halfe Penny, 1668 (sic). In seven lines across the field.
1511. THOMAS HVTHINSONN. In the field, HIS HALF PENY. —R. IN PICKELL HEARING. Five tobacco-pipes.

1512. THE WOODMONGERS ARM (sic). A crown placed on the point of a sword, between two bundles or fagots of wood.—R. AT PICKLE HIRNE STARS. In the field, R. A. G.

The vitiated orthography of this token, pickle hirne, for “pickle herring,” is an imitation of the vulgar pronunciation of the word. These tokens furnish abundant evidence of the \textit{ad libitum} mode of spelling in those days, and prove that it prevailed among those who were not entirely destitute of education. To the uninitiated we may add, that Pickle Herring Stairs is a landing-place on the river-side, near Tooley Street, Southwark.

PIE CORNER.

1513. ADAM EVERELL. A horse-shoe.—R. IN PY CORNER. In the field, A. E.

1514. FRANCIS HARRIS BAKER. In the field, a sheaf of corn. —R. AT PYE CORNER HIS \( \frac{1}{2} \) PENY. In the field, two flowers, the stalks joined in a truelover’s knot, between the letters, F. M. H.

The great fire of London began at the house of a baker, named Farriner, in “Pudding Lane,” and ended at “Pie Corner,” whence the Puritans of the day attributed that great calamity to “the detestable sin of gluttony,” an absurdity recorded on the bloated figure of a boy against the wall of a house in Giltspur Street, West Smithfield.

Pie Corner seems to have received its designation from the trade which thrived in that neighbourhood. Robin Conscience, in his ballad, finding that his name offended the traders in various parts of London, came hither.

“Thus chid of them, my way I took Unto Pye Corner, where a cook
Glanced at me as the devil would look
O’er Lincoln.”

By which we are led to suspect, that the cook either dispensed short weight, or viands of apocryphal character.

1515. JOHN MARSTON TALLOW. A half-moon, seven stars, and five candles strung on a stick.—R. IN PYE CORNER CHANDLER. In the field, HIS HALFE PENY.

1516. SAM. PARKINS MEALMAN AT. A wheatsheaf.—R. PY CORNER WEST SMITHFELDS. In the field, HIS HALFE PENY, S. M. P.

1535. THE EXCHANGE TAVERN. A view of the interior of the quadrangle of the Royal Exchange.—R. IN THE POVLTRY, 1668. In the field, HIS HALFPENY.

This Token was struck two years after the great fire, which destroyed the original building called the Royal Exchange. The view on the reverse of this example is of the new structure, which was destroyed in 1838. In the year 1663, the notorious “German Princess,” played some of her pranks at this tavern, which was then kept by a person named King.

1537. JOHN RIXON AT THE SVN. The sun.—R. IN PRINCES STREET. In the field, HIS HALFPENNY.

PUDDING LANE.

The great fire broke out at a baker's shop in this locality. We have never met with a Token of this tradesman, whose name was Faryner.

1538. JOHN HANDS IN. In the field, H.I.M.—R. PUDDING LANE, 1664. Three sugar-loaves depending from branches.

1539. AT YE MAYDEN HEADE. In the field, head of the Virgin.—R. IN PUDDING LANE, 1637. In the field, B.W.A.

The armorial bearings of the Mercers' Company are the theme of a song composed, it is said, in 1701. One of the stanzas runs thus:

When nature in perfection was,
And virgin Beauty in her prime,
The Mercer gave the nymph a gloss,
And made her beauty more sublime.

CHORUS.

In this above our brethren blest,
The Virgin's since our coat and crest.

The antiquary, however, will trace in this bust the effigies of the Virgin Mary, which, after the Reformation, savoured too much of the old religion to be rightly designated; hence, perhaps, it is so often called the "Mayden Head." It will be found repeatedly occurring in this series.

1540. AT THE BLACKE BULL. A bull.—R. IN PUDDING LANE. In the field, W.I.P.

There can be little doubt that the legend of this token, like those of many others, was furnished to the engraver by the illiterate utterer. The orthography reminds us of the story of the good woman who was asked the name she was about to give to her son, when she replied, "Acts, sir!" "Acts?" said the wondering curate. "Acts? Why Acts?" "O, sir," replied the mother, "we're pious people: we have already four boys, and they are named Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, so we'll call this one Acts!" Some such notion appears to have influenced good Mistress Dell, when she supplied the legend for her pledge for a farthing.

SHOE LANE.

1860. IEREMY BVSHIER AT SHOOE. In the field, I. S. B. — R. LANE END, SMOKER. A sugar loaf.

Snelling was puzzled to know what the trade of "Smoker" was. The sugar loaf shows that Bushier dealt in groceries, with which were doubtless mingled the other articles of a Chandler's shop, bacon, cheese, etc. Many respectable shops in country towns unite several trades, like the London Chandler's shop; and our tradesman perhaps smoked flitches of bacon and hams for "a discerning public" in those days.

1902. THO. WHITE AT YE BLACKMores. Bust of a negro, across the field, his ob. — R. head in west smith-feild. In the field, t. e. w.

This token is remarkable and peculiar, from the circumstance of the owner designating it his obolus. We cannot say how far the devices and inscriptions of these tokens were directed by the actual issuers, and have, therefore, no means of ascertaining if this less vulgar designation was the adoption of the master of the Blackamore's Head, or of the engraver of the die.

1928. APOTHECARY. In the field, C AM in monogram.—R. SNOW HILL. The figure of a cock standing on a spire.

The cock is doubtless chosen as the appropriate device of an apothecary, the bird being sacred to Æsculapius. The vane derived its name of "Weathercock," from the figure of this bird, and the adoption of it has been referred to the device of the English to ridicule their Gallic neighbours; Gallus signifying both cock and Frenchman. Thus Shakespeare puts in the mouth of Joan of Arc.

"Done like a Frenchman, turn and turn again!"

SNOW'S FIELDS.

In the year 1650. The Parliament passed an Act for the sale of several tenements "belonging unto Somerset House." They had been granted on a 99 years' lease, at an annual rent of 10s., to John Villiers Viscount Purbeck, brother to George first Duke of Buckingham. They were accordingly sold; and among other signs, these were enumerated:

"The 3 Bells, in the parish of St. Mary le Savoy, let on lease by King James in the 4th year of his reign, 13s. 4d. The Sugar-loaf, in the same parish, let as aforesaid, 20s. The Sun, Idem, 26s. 8d. SWEETING'S RENTS.

Sweeting's Rents have fled for ever before the march of improvement. Our metropolitan readers will not require to be reminded, that they bounded the east side of the old Exchange; and that Sweeting's Alley leading to them, was generally crowded during "change-hours" with spectacled elderly gentlemen peering at the caricatures, and country bumpkins wondering at the various illustrations of the perpetual motion in the chronometer shops.

TURNMILL STREET.

Turnmill, Turnbal, or Turnbull Street, was, in these days, a locality of evil repute. One of the ladies in Beaumont and Fletcher's "Knight of the Burning Pestle," while undergoing penance at the barber's, gives us a hint of her character, by remarking that she had been "stolen from her friends in Turnbal Street. In the same dramatists' "Scornful Lady," act 3, scene 1.; the steward Saville describing to Lovelace the doings of his brother in his absence, says,—"Here has been such a hurry, such a din, such dismal drinking, swearing, and whoring, that almost made me mad: we have all lived in a continual Turneball Street."

This sign shows the popularity of Dick Tarlton, the famous clown and actor contemporary of Shakspeare. Wheelers Street was situated in Southwark, and the tavern was perhaps one which Tarlton in earlier days had visited. Bishop Hall thus alludes to his popularity:

"O honour far beyond a brazen shrine,
To sit with Tarlton on an ale-post's sign."

A LIST OF
MR. AKERMAN'S ARCHAEOLOGICAL WORKS.

AN ARCHAEOLOGICAL INDEX TO REMAINS OF ANTIQUITY OF THE CELTIC, ROMANO-BRITISH AND ANGLO-SAXON PERIODS. 1 vol. 8vo. price 15s. cloth, illustrated by numerous engravings, comprising upwards of five hundred objects.

PART I. CELTIC PERIOD.—Tumuli, or Barrows and Cairns. — Cromlechs.—Sepulchral Caves.—Rocking Stones.—Stone Circles, etc. etc.—Objects discovered in Celtic Sepulchres.—Urns.—Beads.—Weapons,—Implements, etc.

PART II. ROMANO-BRITISH PERIOD—Tumuli of the Roman-British Period.—Burial Places of the Romans.—Pavements.—Camps.—Villas.—Sepulchral Monuments.—Sepulchral Inscriptions.—Dedicatory Inscriptions.—Commemorative Inscriptions.—Altars.—Urns.—Glass Vessels.—Fibulae.—Armillae.—Coins.—Coin-Moulds, etc. etc.

PART III. ANGLO-SAXON PERIOD.—Tumuli.—Detailed List of Objects discovered.—Anglo-Saxon Barrows.—Urns.—Swords.—Spear.—Knives.—Umbones of Shields.—Buckles.—Fibulae.—Bullae.—Hair Pins.—Beads, etc. etc. etc. etc.

The ITINERARY OF ANTONINUS (as far as relates to Britain.) The Geographical Tables of Ptolemy, the Notitia, and the Itinerary of Richard of Cirencester, together with a classified Index of the contents of the Archæologia (vols. i. to xxxi.), are given in an Appendix.

"No one can doubt the author's qualifications: Mr. Akerman's chief reputation is as a numismatist; but in the work before us he has shown that his Archæological acquirements have a much wider range."—Athenæum.

"One of the first wants of an Inclined Antiquary is the facility of comparison, and here it is furnished him at one glance. The plates, indeed, form the most valuable part of the book, both by their number and the judicious selection of types and examples which they contain. It is a book which we can, on this account, safely and warmly recommend to all who are interested in the antiquities of their native land."—Literary Gazette.

"A book of such utility—so concise, so clear, so well condensed from such varied and voluminous sources, cannot fail to be generally acceptable."—Art Union.

A NUMISMATIC MANUAL. One vol. 8vo. price One Guinea.

* * * The Plates which illustrate this Volume are upon a novel plan, and will, at a glance, convey more information regarding the types of Greek, Roman, and English Coins than can be obtained by many hours' careful reading. Instead of a fac-simile Engraving being given of that which is already an enigma to the tyro, the most striking and characteristic features of the Coin are dissected and placed by themselves, so that the eye soon becomes familiar with them.

A DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF RARE AND UNEDITED ROMAN COINS from the earliest period to the taking of Rome under Constantine Paleologos. 2 vols. 8vo. Numerous Plates, 30s.
MR. AKERMAN'S ARCHÆOLOGICAL WORKS.

COINS OF THE ROMANS RELATING TO BRITAIN. 1 vol. 8vo. Second Edition, with an entirely new set of plates, price 10s. 6d.

"Votre commission, Messieurs, vous propose donc de décerner le prix fondé par M. Allier d'Haunteroche à l'archéologue zélé qui, depuis dix années, publie le Journal Numismatique de Londres, auquel l'Angleterre doit un bon Manuel de Numismatique, et qui vient entreprendre la publication d'un Recueil de toutes les Médailles des peuples, villes et rois de l'antiquité."—Address of the Commission appointed to Report to the "Institut de France" on the works sent in by Candidates for the Numismatic Prize. Sess. 1845.

ANCIENT COINS OF CITIES AND PRINCES, Geographically arranged and described, containing the coins of Hispania, Gallia, and Britannia, with plates of several hundred examples. 1 vol. 8vo, price 10s. • The plates of British Coins comprise many specimens unknown to Ruding.

NUMISMATIC ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE NARRATIVE PORTIONS of the New Testament; fine paper, numerous woodcuts from the original coins in various public and private collections. 1 vol. 8vo, price 5s. 6d.

AN INTRODUCTION to THE STUDY of ANCIENT and MODERN COINS. In 1 vol. fep. 8vo, with numerous wood engravings from the original coins, price 5s. 6d. cloth.

CONTENTS:—

TRADESMEN'S TOKENS current in London and its vicinity, from the year 1648 to 1672 inclusive. Described from the originals in the collection of the British Museum, etc., eight plates. The price to Subscribers only, is half a guinea; to Non-Subscribers, 15s.

This work comprises a list of more than two thousand five hundred Tokens, and contains occasionally illustrative topographical and antiquarian notes on persons, places, streets, old tavern and coffee-house signs, etc. etc.; with an introductory account of the causes which led to the adoption of such a currency. A few copies in 4to., price one guinea. The whole impression is limited.

GLOSSARY of PROVINCIAL WORDS AND PHRASES in use in Wiltshire. 12mo. 3s.

THE NUMISMATIC CHRONICLE is published Quarterly, by JOHN RUSSELL SMITH, No. 4, Old Compton Street, Soho Square, London, to whom all communications for the Editor should be addressed. Perfect sets of the first four volumes, have, for some time, been out of print, but a few copies of the last six volumes may be had by early application. The number printed for the future will be proportioned to the present list of Subscribers, and on this account, the publisher cannot pledge himself to supply the work after the lapse of twelve months. Subscribers may avoid disappointment by sending their names direct to the publisher, and those who possess imperfect volumes may possibly get them completed, by applying at once as above.
Philology and Early English Literature.

A Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial Words, Obsolete Phrases, Proverbs, and Ancient Customs, from the reign of Edward I. By JAMES ORCHARD HALLIWELL, F.R.S., F.S.A., &c. 2 vols. 8vo, containing upwards of 1000 pages, closely printed in double columns, cloth, 21. 2s.

This work, which has occupied the Editor some years, is now completed; it contains above 50,000 words (embodying all the scattered glossaries of the English language) forming a complete key for the reader of the works of our old Poets, Dramatists, Theologians, and other authors who works abound with allusions, of which explanations are not to be found in ordinary Dictionaries and books of reference. Most of the principal Archaisms are illustrated by examples selected from early inedited MSS. and rare books, and by far the greater portion will be found to be original authorities.

"This promises to be a very useful work, and is evidently the result of extensive research, and of great labour judiciously applied. The want of a work of this description has long been felt, and several attempts have been made to supply the deficiency, but for some reason or other they have all hitherto failed. The Glossary of Archdeacon Nares is not only imperfect, but Professorly restricted to a comparatively narrow scope, embracing terms used by the writers chiefly of the Elizabethan era; it is now, besides, a rare and costly book. Boucher's Glossary miscarried because it was begun in an inconvenient form, and on too expensive a scale. The work now before us, of which the first two parts alone have been published, appears to be much more complete than Boucher's, and has the advantage of being printed in a convenient form for reference, while its price is very moderate. It forms a most comprehensive Glossary to all our Old English writers, from the beginning of the fourteenth century to the time of the Stuarts, including the earlier Chroniclers, the writings of Wycliffe, and a long range of Poets, from Piers Ploughman, Chaucer, Gower, Lydgate, &c., to Spenser and his contemporaries, with Shakespeare and the Dramatists of that age. In addition to the obsolete portion of our language, this work may be said to be a complete Dictionary of the local dialects of the present day, and is one which will be an acceptable addition to every library." — Morning Herald.

"Mr. Halliwell is, we must acknowledge, as well qualified, by industry, ability, and previous study, to be the editor as any man living. We could indeed easily name a dozen persons, each of whom would be better qualified for particular departments, but not one who, including the whole range embraced by the title, could carry the ability and energy to go through all the drudging duties of the office more satisfactorily. It is a work, however, that, in the first instance, must be imperfect. We hold, therefore, that every English scholar should have an interleaved copy, that he may contribute something towards improving a second edition. The first number appears to have been carefully compiled; but we are not inclined to see very curiously for faults in a work of such obvious difficulty, when, even if it be imperfect, it cannot fail to be useful." — Athenaeum.

Guide to the Anglo-Saxon Tongue: on the basis of Professor Rask's Grammar, to which are added Reading Lessons in verse and prose, with Notes for the use of learners. By E. J. VERNON, B.A., Oxon. 12mo, cloth, 5s. 6d.

The student is furnished with a cheaper, easier, more comprehensive, and not less trustworthy guide to this tongue, than has hitherto been placed within his reach.

"The author of this Guide seems to have made one step in the right direction, by compiling what may be pronounced the best work on the subject hitherto published in England."—Athenæum.

"Mr. Vernon is a laboriously accurate Anglo-Saxon scholar, as is seen in his attention to the quantity of words; a branch of Anglo-Saxon grammar in which later scholars have done much by comparing the forms of roots as they are found in the different Teutonic dialects."—Gent's Mag. for Feb.

Reliquiae Antiquae. Scraps from Ancient Manuscripts, illustrating chiefly Early English Literature, and the English Language, edited by WRIGHT and HALLIWELL, 9 vols. 8vo, cloth, 2l. 2s.—REDUCED to 1l. 4s.

Contents:—An Anglo-Saxon Treatise on Astronomy of the TENTH CENTURY, now first published from a MS. in the British Museum, with a translation; Livre des Créatures, by Phillippus de Thaum, now first printed with a translation, extremely valuable to the Philologist, as being the earliest specimens of Anglo-Norman remaining, and explanatory of all the symbolic signs in early sculpture and painting; the Bestiary of Phillippus de Thaum, with a translation; Fragment on Popular Science from the Early English Metrical Lives of the Saints, (the earliest piece of the kind in the English language.)

An Introduction to Anglo-Saxon Reading; comprising Ælfric's Homily on the Birthday of St. Gregory, with a copious Glossary, &c. By L. LANGLEY, F.L.S. 12mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

Anecdota Literaria: A Collection of Short Poems in English, Latin, and French, Illustrative of the Literature and History of England in the XIIIth Century; and more especially of the Condition and Manners of the different Classes of Society. By T. WRIGHT, M.A., F.S.A., &c. 8vo, cloth. Only 250 printed. 7s. 6d.

Philological Proofs of the original Unity and recent Origin of the Human Race, derived from a Comparison of the Languages of Asia, Europe, Africa, and America. By A. J. JOHNES, 8vo, cloth. REDUCED from 12s. 6d. to 6s.

Printed at the suggestion of Dr. Pritchard, to whose works it will be found a useful supplement.

"Besides the curious specimens of the dramatic style of Middle-Age Latinity, Mr. Wright has given two compositions in the Narrative Elegie Vers, a favorite measure at that period, In the Comedia Babinosis and the Getae of Vitalis Blesensis, which form a link of connexion between the Classical and Middle-age Literature; some remarkable Satirical Rhymes on the people of Norfolk, written by a Monk of Peterborough, and answered in the same style by John of St. Omer; and lastly, some sprightly and often graceful songs, from a MS. in the Arundel Collection, which afford a very favorable idea of the Lyric Poetry of our clerical forefathers."—Gentleman's Mag.

The Early History of Freemasonry in England, Illustrated by an English Poem of the XIVth Century, with Notes. By J. O. HALLIWELL. Post 8vo, SECOND EDITION, with a fac-simile of the original MS. in the British Museum, cloth, 2s. 6d.

"The interest which the curious poem of which this publication is chiefly composed has excited, is proved by the fact of its having been translated into German, and of it having reached a second edition, which is not common with such publications. Mr. Halliwell has carefully revised the new edition, and increased its utility by the addition of a complete and correct glossary."—Literary Gazette.

Torrent of Portugal; an English Metrical Romance, now first published, from an unique MS. of the XVth century, preserved in the Chetham Library at Manchester. Edited by J. O. HALLIWELL, &c. Post 8vo, cloth, uniform with Ritson, Weber, and Ellis's publications, 5s.

"This is a valuable and interesting addition to our list of early English metrical romances, and an indispensable companion to the collections of Ritson, Weber, and Ellis."—Literary Gazette.

"A literary curiosity, and one both welcome and serviceable to the lover of black-letter lore. Though the obscurity of the style may occasion and stumbling to a modern reader, yet the class to which it rightly belongs will value it accordingly; both because it is curious in its details, and possesses philological importance. To the general reader it presents one feature of interest, viz. the reference to Wayland Smith, whom Sir W. Scott has invested with so much interest."—Metropolitan Magazine.

An Essay on the Origin, Progress, and Decline of Rhyming Latin Verse, with many specimens. By Sir ALEX. CROKE. Post 8vo, cloth, 7s. 6d., reduced to 5s.

"This is a clever and interesting little volume on an attractive subject, the leisure work of a scholar and a man of taste."—British Critic.

On the Origin and Formation of the Romance Languages; containing an examination of M. Raynaud's Theory on the Relation of the Italian, Spanish, Provençal, and French, to the Latin. By GEO. CORNEWALL LEWIS. 8vo, cloth, 12s. REDUCED to 7s. 6d.
The Harrowing of Hell, a Miracle
Play, written in the Reign of Edward II., now first published from the Original in the British Museum, with a Modern Reading, Introduction, and Notes. By JAMES ORCHARD HALLIWELL, Esq., F.R.S., F.S.A., &c. 8vo, sewed, 2s.

This curious piece is supposed to be the earliest specimen of dramatic composition in the English language; vide Hallam's Literature of Europe, Vol. i.; Strutt's Manners and Customs, Vol. ii.; Warton's English Poetry; Sharon Turner's England; Collier's History of English Dramatic Poetry, Vol. ii. p. 215. All these writers refer to the Manuscript.

Nugæ Poétææ; Select Pieces of Old English Popular Poetry, illustrating the Manners and Arts of the Xviiith Century. Edited by J. O. HALLI- WEL. Post 8vo. Only 100 copies printed, cloth, 5s.

Contents:—Colyn Blowl's Testament; the Debate of the Carpenter's Tools; the Merchant and his Son; the Maid and the Magpie; Elegy on Lobe, Henry VIIIth's Fool; Romance of Robert of Sicily, and five other curious pieces of the same kind.

Rara Mathematica; or a Collection of Treatises on the Mathematics and Subjects connected with them, from ancient inedited MSS. by J. O. HALLIWELL. 8vo, Second Edition, cloth, 3s. 6d.

Contents:—Johannis de Sacro-Bosco Tractatus de Arte Numerandi; Method used in England in the Fifteenth Century for taking the Altitude of a Steeple; Treatise on the Numeration of Algorism; Treatise on Glasses for Optical Purposes, by W. Bourne; Johannis Robyns de Cometas Commentariarum; Two Tables showing the time of High Water at London Bridge, and the Duration of Moonlight, from a MS. of the Thirteenth Century; on the Measurement of Heights and Distances; Alexandri de Villa Del Carmen de Algorismo; Preface to a Calendar or Almanack for 1430; Johannis Norfolk in Arctem progressionis summula; Notes on Early Almanacs, by the Editor, &c. &c.

Reliques of Irish Jacobite Poetry, with Interlinear Translations, and Biographical Sketches of the Authors, and Notes by J. DALY, also English Metrical Versions by E. WALSH. 8vo. Parts 1 and 2 (all yet published,) 2s.

An Historical Sketch of the Provincial Dialects of England, illustrated by numerous examples. Extracted from the "Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial Words." By JAMES ORCHARD HALLIWELL. 8vo, sewed, 2s.

Westmorland and Cumberland Dialects. Dialogues, Poems, Songs, and Ballads, by various Writers, in the Westmorland and Cumberland Dialects, now first collected, to which is added, a Copious Glossary of Words peculiar to those Counties. Post 8vo, pp. 406, cloth, 9s.

This collection comprises, in the Westmorland Dialect, MISS ANNE WHEELER'S Four Familiar Dialogues, with Poems, &c.; in the Cumberland Dialect, i, Poems and Pastoral by the Rev. JOSIAH RELPH; ii. Pastors, &c., by EWAN CLARK; iii. Letter from Dublin by a young Borrowdale Shepherd, by ISAAC RITCH; iv. Poems by JOHN STAGG; V. Poems by MARK LONSDALE; vi. Ballads and Songs by ROBERT ANDERSON, the Cumbrian Bard (including some now first printed); vii. Songs by Miss BLAMIRE and Miss GILPIN; viii. Songs by JOHN RAYSON; ix. An Extensive Glossary of Westmorland and Cumberland Words.

"Among the specimens of Cumberland Verse will be found some true poetry, if not the best ever written in the language of rural life this side the Scotch Borders. The writers seem to have caught in their happiest hours inspiration from the rapt soul of Burns. Anderson's touching song of wedded love, 'The Days that are gone,' is a worthy answer for a husband to Burn's 'John Anderson my Jo.'"—Gen's Magazine.

"No other two counties in England have so many pieces, both in prose and verse, illustrative of the manners and customs of the inhabitants, and written in their own native dialect. The philologist will find numerous examples of words and phrases which are obsolete in the general language of England, or which have been peculiar to Westmorland and Cumberland from time immemorial. Nor are the pieces uninteresting in other respects. Some of the "potus" verses are rich in the true spirit and vigour of poetry."—Metropolitan.

"A charming volume: It contains some beautiful poetical effusions, as well as characteristic sketches in prose."—Archæologist.

The Yorkshire Dialect, exemplified in various Dialogues, Tales, and Songs, applicable to the County, with a Glossary. Post 8vo. 1s.

"A shining book worth its money; most of the pieces of composition are not only harmless, but good and pretty. The elegue on the death of 'Awd Daly,' an outworn horse, is an outpouring of some of the best feelings of the rustic mind; and the addresses to riches and poverty have much of the freedom and spirit of Burns."—Gen's Magazine, May 1841.

Specimens of Cornish Provincial Dialect, collected and arranged by Uncle Jan Treedoodle, with some Introductory Remarks and a Glossary by an Antiquarian; also a Selection of Songs and other Pieces connected with Cornwall. Post 8vo, with curious portrait of Dolly Pentreath, cloth, 4s.

Exmoor Scolding and Courtship in the Propriety and Decency of Exmoor (Devonshire) Language, with Notes and a Glossary. Post 8vo, 12th edition, 1s. 6d.

"A very rich bit of West of Englandism."—Metropolitan.
Grose's (Francis, F.S.A.) Glossary of Provincial and Local Words used in England, with which is now first incorporated the Supplement by SAMUEL PEGGE, F.S.A. Post 8vo, elegantly printed, cloth, 4s. 6d.

The utility of a Provincial Glossary to all persons desirous of understanding our ancient poets is so universally acknowledged, that to enter into a proof of it would be entirely a work of supererogation. Grose and Pegge are constantly referred to in Todd's "Johnson's Dictionary."

A fine poetic feeling is displayed through the various pieces in this volume; according to some critics nothing has appeared equal to it since the time of Burns; the "Gent's Magazine" for Dec. 1844, gave a review of the volume some pages in length.

A Glossary of Provincial Words and Phrases in use in Wilts, showing their Derivation in numerous instances from the Language of the Anglo-Saxons. By JOHN YONGE AREMAN, Esq., F.S.A. 12mo, cloth, 3s.

A Collection of Fugitive Pieces in the Dialect of Zummerzet. Edited by J. O. HALLIWELL. Post 8vo, only 50 printed, 2s.

Dick and Sal, or Jack and Joan's Fair, a Doggerel Poem, in the Kentish Dialect. 3d edition, 12mo, 6d.

Jan Cladpole's Trip to Mercurie in Search for Dollar Trees, and how he got rich enough to beg his way home! written in Sussex Doggerel. 12mo, 6d.

John Noakes and Mary Styles, a Poem, exhibiting some of the most striking localisms peculiar to Essex, with a Glossary. By CHARLES CLARK, Esq. of Great Totham Hall, Essex. Post 8vo, cloth, 2s.

Heraldry, Topography, Numismatics, and Archæology.

The Curiosities of Heraldry, with Illustrations from Old English Writers.

By MARK ANTONY LOWER, Author of "Essays on English Surnames," with Illuminated Title-page, and numerous Engravings from designs by the Author. 8vo, cloth, gilt, appropriately ornamented, or, 14s.

This work is one of the principal authorities made use of by the compiler of Parker's recently published "Glossary of Heraldry," which is printed uniformly with it, and similarly illustrated. The two works should accompany each other. For the student of the "Noble Science," a treatise like Parker's is necessary for matters of detail, while one who wishes for a copious, continuous, and philosophical view of Heraldry, and its connexion with the history and manners of the middle ages, will be amply gratified by a perusal of the "Curiosities of Heraldry."

"The present volume is truly a worthy sequel (to the 'Surnames') in the same curious and antiquarian line, blending with remarkable facts and intelligence, such a fund of amusing anecdote and illustration, that the reader is almost surprised to find that he has learnt so much, whilst he appeared to be pursuing mere entertainment. The text is so pleasing that we scarcely dream of its sterling value; and it seems as if, in unison with the woodcuts, which so cleverly explain its points and adorn its various topics, the whole design were intended for a relaxation from study, rather than an ample exhibition of an extraordinary and universal custom, which produced the most important effect upon the minds and habits of mankind."—Literary Gazette.

"Mr. Lower's work is both curious and instructive, while the manner of its treatment is so inviting and popular, that the subject to which it refers, which many have hitherto had too good reason to consider mere and unprofitable, assumes, under the hands of the writer, the novelty of fiction with the importance of historical truth."—Athenæum.

English Surnames. A Series of Essays on Family Nomenclature, Historical, Etymological, and Humorous; with Chapters on Canting Arms, Rebuses, the Roll of Battel Abbey, A List of Latinized Surnames, &c. By MARK ANTONY LOWER. The second edition, enlarged, post 8vo, pp. 292, with 20 woodcuts, cloth, 6s.

To those who are curious about their patronymic, it will be found a very instructive and amusing volume—mingling wit and pleasantry, with antiquarian research and historical interest.

"An instructive and amusing volume, which ought to be popular. Perhaps no subject is more curious than the history of proper names. How few persons are there who have not on one occasion or other been struck with the singular names which have fallen under their own observation, and who have not sought for information as to their origin? Yet we know of no work of any value, much more a popular work, which treats of the subject. Mr. Lower has written a very good and well-arranged book, which we can with confidence recommend to our readers."—Archæologist.

This work, which has engaged the attention of the Authors for several years, comprises nearly a thousand families, many of them amongst the most ancient and eminent in the kingdom, each carried down to its representative or representatives still existing, with elaborate and minute details of the alliances, achievements, and fortunes, generation after generation, from the earliest to the latest period. The work is printed to correspond precisely with the last edition of Mr. Burke's Dictionary of the Existing Peerage and Baronetage; the armorial bearings are engraved in the best style, and are incorporated with the text in that work.
Pedigrees of the Nobility and Gentry of Hertfordshire. By WILLIAM BERRY, late and for fifteen years Registering Clerk in the College of Arms, Author of the "Encyclopaedia Heraldica," &c. &c. Folio (only 125 printed), bds. 3l. 10s. Reduced to 1l. 5s.

"These Collections of Pedigrees will be found of great utility, though not of sufficient proof in themselves to establish the claims of kindred set forth in them: but affording a ready clue to such necessary proof whenever it should be required, by pointing out the places of nativity, baptism, marriages, and burials, and such other legal data as localities will otherwise afford, and the modern entries in the Herald’s College, are of no better authority, requiring the very same kind of proof for legal purposes. This observation will perhaps silence the ill-natured remarks which have emanated from that quarter: and it is self-evident that the printing of 250 copies is a much safer record than one manuscript entry there, which might easily be destroyed."—Preface.

History and Antiquities of the Ancient Port and Town of Rye in Sussex, compiled from Original Documents. By WILLIAM HOLLOWAY, Esq. Thick 8vo, cloth, ll. 1s.

Historic Sites and other Remarkable and Interesting Places in the County of Suffolk. By JOHN WODDERSPoon, with Prefatory Verses by BERNARD BARTON, Esq., and a Poetical Epilogue by a "SUFFOLK VILLAGER." Improved edition, fine woodcuts, post 8vo, pp. 252, closely printed, and bound in as much as many 12s. volumes, cloth, only 4s. 6d.

Principal Contents:—Framlingham Castle; Stoningfield; Rookwood; Mrs. Inchbald; Abham Common; the Martyr’s Stone; Westhorpe Hall, the residence of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk; Ipswich; Wolsey’s Gate and Mr. Sparrow’s House; Rendlesham; Redgrave; Bury St. Edmunds, the Abbey; David Hartley; Ip. Gardiner; George Bloomfield; Wetheringset; Haughley Castle; Grimstone Hall; Cavendish, the Voyager; Framlingham Church, the burial-place of Surrey, the Poet; Bungay Castle; Dunwich; Aldborough; Wingfield, and the Old Halls of Suffolk.

The Local Historian’s Table-Book of Remarkable Occurrences, Historical Facts, Traditions, Legendary and Descriptive Ballads, &c. &c., connected with the Counties of NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, NORTHUMBERLAND, and DURHAM. By M. A. RICHARDSON. Royal 8vo, profusely illustrated with woodcuts, now Complete in 8 vols. royal 8vo, cloth, 9s. each, or the Divisions sold separately as follows:—HISTORICAL DIVISION, 5 vols. LEGENDARY DIVISION, 3 vols.

The legendry portion will be found very interesting volumes by those who take no interest in the Historical portion.

"This chronology of local occurrences, from the earliest times when a date is ascertainable possesses an especial interest for the residents of the Northern Counties; but, inasmuch as it records Historical events as well as trivial incidents, and includes Biographical notices of men whose fame extended beyond their birth-places, it is not without a value to the general reader. The work is divided into two portions, the larger consisting of the chronicle, and the lesser of the traditions and ballads of the country. Some of these are very characteristic and curious; they Invest with poetic associations almost every ruin or plot of ground; and the earlier legends of moss-troopers and border-strifes afford an insight into the customs and state of society in remote periods. The handsome pages are illustrated with woodcuts of old buildings and other antiquities."—Spectator.

History of Banbury, in Oxfordshire, including Copious Historical and Antiquarian Notices of the Neighbourhood. By ALFRED BEESLEY. Thick 8vo, 634 closely printed pages, with 66 woodcuts, engraved in the first style of art, by O. Jeuett, of Oxford, (pub. at ll. 5s.) now reduced to 15s.

"The neighbourhood of Banbury is equally rich in British, Roman, Saxon, Norman, and English Antiquities, of all which Mr. Beesley has given regularly cleared accounts. Banbury holds an important place in the history of the Parliamentary War of the Seventeenth Century, and was the scene of the great Battle of Edghill, and of the important fight of Cropredy Bridge. Relating to the events of that period, the author has collected a great body of local information of the most interesting kind. By no means the least valuable part of Mr. Beesley’s work, is his account of the numerous interesting early churches, which characterize the Banbury district."—The Archæologist.

J. R. SMITH having bought the whole stock of the above very interesting volume, invites the Subscribers to complete their copies in parts without delay, the price of which will be (for a short time) 1s. 6d., instead of 3s. 6d.

History and Topography of the Isle of Axholme, in Lincolnshire. By the REV. W. B. STONEHOUSE. Thick 4to, fine plates, reduced from 3l. 3s. to 15s.

The Druidical Temples of the County of Wilt. By the Rev. E. DUKE, M.A., F.S.A., Member of the Archeological Institute, &c., Author of the "Hall of John Halle," and other works, 12mo, plates, cloth, 5s.

"Mr. Duke has been long honourably known as a zealous cultivator of our local antiquities. His collections on this subject, and on the literature of Wiltshire, are nowhere surpassed; while his residence on the borders of the Plain, and in reach of our most interesting remains, has afforded scope to his meritorious exertions. The work before us is the fruit of long study and laborious investigation."—Salisbury Journal.

A Critical Dissertation on Professor Willis’s "Architectural History of Canterbury Cathedral." By C. SANDYS, of Canterbury. 8vo, 2s. 6d.

"Written in no querulous or captious spirit: the highest compliment is paid to Professor Willis, where it is due. But the author has certainly made out a clear case, in some very important instances, of inaccuracies that have led the learned Professor into the construction of serious errors throughout. It may be considered as an indispensable companion to his volume, containing a great deal of extra information of a very curious kind."—Art-Union.
The Visitor’s Guide to Knole House, near Seven Oaks in Kent, with Catalogue of the Pictures contained in the Mansion, a Genealogical History of the Sackville Family, &c. &c. By J. H. BRADY, F.R.A.S. 12mo, 87 woodcuts by Bonner, Siby, &c. cloth, 4s. 6d. Large Paper, 10s.

Illustrations of Knole House, from Drawings by Knight, engraved on wood by Bonner, Siby, &c. 8vo, 16 plates, with descriptions, 5s. Greenwich; its History, Antiquities, and Public Buildings. By H. S. RICHARDSON. 12mo, fine woodcuts by Baxter. 1s. 6d.

The Folkestone Fiery Serpent, together with the Humours of the Dovor Mayor; being an Ancient Ballad full of Mystery and pleasant Conceit, now first collected and printed from the various MS. copies in possession of the inhabitants of the South-east Coast of Kent, with Notes. 12mo, 1s.

The History of the Town of Gravesend in Kent, and of the Port of London. By R. P. CRUDELL, late Mayor of Gravesend, Royal 8vo, 37 fine plates and woodcuts, a very handsome volume, cloth, 1643, reduced from 1s. 8d. to 10s.

Bibliotheca Cantiana, a Bibliographical Account of what has been published on the History, Topography, Antiquities, Customs, and Family Genealogy of the County of Kent, with Biographical Notes. By JOHN RUSSELL SMITH. In a handsome 8vo volume, pp. 370, with two plates of fac-similes of Autographs of 33 eminent Kentish Writers. 1s. 6d. Reduced to 5s.—large paper, 10s. 6d.

A Journey to Beresford Hall, in Derbyshire, the Seat of CHARLES COTTON, Esq. the celebrated Author and Angler. By W. ALEXANDER, F.S.A., F.L.S., late Keeper of the Prints in the British Museum. Crown 4to, printed on tinted paper, with a spirited frontispiece, representing Walton and his adopted Son Cotton in the Fishing-house, and vignette title-page, cloth, 5s.

Dedicated to the Anglers of Great Britain and the various Walton and Cotton Clubs, only 100 printed.

Coins of the Romans relating to Britain, Described and Illustrated. By J. Y. AKEMAN, F.S.A. Secretary to the Numismatic Society, &c. Second edition, greatly enlarged, 8vo, with plates and woodcuts, cloth, 10s. 6d.

The ‘Prix de Numismatique’ has just been awarded by the French Institute to the author for this work. "Mr. Akeman's volume contains a notice of every known variety, with copious illustrations, and is published at a very moderate price: it should be consulted, not merely for these particular coins, but also for facts most valuable to all who are interested in the Romano-British history."—Archaeological Journal.

A Hand-Book of English Coins from the Conquest to Victoria. By L. JEWITT. 12mo, 11 plates, cloth, 1s.

"The volume contains most of the papers entire that were read at the Meeting, and revised by the Authors. It will become a scarce book as only 120 were printed; and it forms the first yearly volume of the Archæological Association, or the Archæological Institute."

Popular Poetry, Stories, and Superstitions.

Edited by J. O. HALLI well. The Fourth Edition, enlarged, with 33 Designs by W. B. SCOTT, Director of the School of Design, Newcastle-on-Tyne. 12mo, in very rich illuminated cloth, gilt leaves, 4s. 6d.

"Illustrations! And here they are; clever pictures which the three-year olds understand before their A, B, C, and which the fifty-three years old almost as well as the three."—Literary Gazette.

"We are persuaded that the very rudest of these jingles, tales, and rhymes, possess a strong imagination-nourishing power; and that in infancy and early childhood, a sprinkling of ancient nursery lore is worth whole cartloads of the wise saws and modern instances which are now as dully and carefully concocted by experienced literatures, into instructive tales for the spelling public, as are works of entertainment for the reading public. The work is worthy of the attention of the popular antiquary."—Tait's Mag.

The public are cautioned against other works with imitative titles, which have been published since the second edition of the above, and which are mostly pirated from it. Mr. Halliwell's is the largest collection of these odd ditties ever formed, with explanatory notes, &c. &c.

An Essay on the Archæology of our Popular Phrases and Nursery Rhymes. By H. B. KER. 2 vols. 12mo, new cloth, 4s. 6d. (pub. at 12s.)

A work which has met with great abuse among the reviewers, but those who are fond of philologous pursuits will read it now it is to be had at so very moderate a price, and it really contains a good deal of gossiping matter. The author's attempt is to explain everything from the Dutch, which he believes was the same language as the Anglo-Saxon.

The Merry Tales of the Wise Men of Gotham. Edited by JAMES ORCHARD HALLI well, Esq. F.S.A. Post 8vo, 6s.

These tales are supposed to have been composed in the early part of the sixteenth century, by Dr. Andrew Borde, the well-known progenitor of Merry Andrews. "In the time of Henry the Eighth, and after," says Ant.-to-Wood, "it was accounted a book full of wit and mirth by scholars and gentlemen."

The Noble and Renowned History of Guy, Earl of Warwick, containing a full and true account of his many famous and valiant actions. 12mo, new edition, with woodcuts, cloth, 2s. 6d.

"It must be observed, that this is not a mere account of St. Patrick's Purgatory, but a complete history of the legends and superstitions relating to the subject, from the earliest times, rescued from old MSS. as well as from old printed books. Moreover, it embraces a singular chapter of literary history, omitted by Warton and all former writers who whom we are acquainted; and we think we may add, that it forms the best introduction to Dante that has yet been published."—Literary Gazette.

"This appears to be a curious and even amusing book on the singular subject of Purgatory, in which the idle and fearful dreams of super-stition are shown to be first narrated as tales, and then applied as means of deducing the moral character of the age in which they prevailed."—Spectator.

Trial of the Witches at Bury St. Edmunds, before Sir M. HALE, 1664, with an Appendix by CHARLES CLARK, Esq. of Totham, Essex. 8vo, 1s.

"The most perfect narrative of anything of this nature hitherto extant."—Preface.

Wonderful Discovery of the Witchcrafts of Margaret and Philip Flower, daughters of Joan Flower, near Bever (Leicest.) executed at Lincoln for confessing themselves actors in the destruction of Lord Rosse, son of the Earl of Rutland. 1618. 8vo, 1s.

One of the most extraordinary cases of Witchcraft on record.

Account of the Trial, Confession, and Condemnation of Six Witches at MAIDSTONE, 1632; also the Trial and Execution of Three others at Paversham, 1645. 8vo, 1s.

These transactions are unnoticed by all the Kentish historians.

Biography, Literary History, and Criticism.

England's Worthies, under whom all the Civil and Bloody Warses, since Anno 1642 to Anno 1647, are related. By JOHN VICARS, Author of "England's Parliamentary Chronicle," &c. &c. Royal 12mo, reprinted in the old style, (similar to Lady Willoughby's Diary,) with copies of the 18 rare portraits after Hollar, &c. half morocco, 5s.

Copies of the original edition have been sold from 16l. to 20l.
